Small plane crashes near Buttonville

MARKHAM A small plane crashed yesterday afternoon into a parking lot of a building near the Buttonville airport in Markham.

There were reports one person was killed, but York region police could not say how many people were aboard or whether they survived. It was not clear if the plane was taking off or landing at the airport on the edge of an industrial area. In late May, a pilot and passenger were killed when a small plane crashed into a building after taking off from the same airport.

Dogged snoops

Federal tax employees caught spying at work

Dozens of workers at Canada's tax agency have been caught snooping on their ex-spouses, mothers-in-law, creditors and others by reading confidential tax files.

Internal reports at the Canada Revenue Agency show rogue employees are improperly reviewing the private financial affairs of taxpayers without their knowledge.

And some are using agency computers to give favoured treatment to colleagues, friends, family — and themselves.

Documents outlining the forbidden invasions into private tax data were obtained by The Canadian Press under the Access to Information Act.

In one case, a worker secretly operated a business on the side with her spouse, and between 2004 and 2009 "accessed the accounts of two creditors and the spouse of one of those creditors."

Agency gumshoes stumbled on a secret cell of snoopers in the same location.

The documents show that ex-spouses are sometimes targeted, for reasons not made clear in the heavily censored material from September and October last year. Family members were also a favoured target.

776

In one egregious breach last October, a woman accessed 37,500 emails and 776 documents containing confidential financial information about ordinary Canadians. She downloaded the files onto 17 compact discs for her personal use, inexplicably helped by agency technicians.

Summits OK with Canadians despite price tag: Poll

NUMBERS A fake lake, faux Muskoka backdrops and a $1-billion price tag are troubling, but not enough to turn off a majority of Canadians to the benefits of summitry, a new poll suggests.

Three-quarters of respondents to The Canadian Press Harris-Decima poll said this week's G8 and G20 summits are important and worth the expense of their country hosting. Some 76 per cent said the summits in Muskoka and Toronto were either very or somewhat important versus 20 per cent who said they were opposed. Survey respondents favoured their country hosting the talks by a 68-26 margin.

Most poll respondents didn't expect a lot of progress to be made at the G20, where the global economy is the focus, 66 per cent said they expected "a little" progress would be made, while 21 per cent said they expected none at all.

Teaching kids the crawl

Mayoral candidate George Smitherman announced he would launch a "passport to swimming" to ensure that kids aged 10 and younger receive basic swimming instruction. Speaking at Woodbine Beach yesterday where many Torontonians were enjoying a dip to beat the sweltering heat, Smitherman pledged that every child in Toronto should be given free basic swimming instruction to battle the alarming rates of drowning amongst young children in the city. Two new schools planned

$395 million needed for projects would come from sale of unused land

Toronto's public board has a $395-million plan to build two brand new schools, upgrade science labs, make more buildings barrier-free and improve water quality over the next five years.

"This is the first time in my 10 years on the board that I've seen this kind of comprehensive capital strategy," said trustee Bruce Davis, who is chair of the Toronto District School Board.

The money will also allow the board to eliminate its capital deficit, which is about $61 million.

Apart from about $20 million in provincial funding, most of the money comes from selling off unused buildings and land.

"This is virtually all self-funded," added Davis. "The board is, in effect, financing its own development."

It will also spend millions to renovate schools that will be taking in students from schools that close. As many as nine schools could be approved for closing at Wednesday's meeting.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Where the money would go

In a report that goes before a committee tonight and then a full board meeting Wednesday, trustees will vote on:

- A new $41-million school to replace Bendale Business and Technical Institute and David and Mary Thomson Collegiate in Scarborough
- $15 million for a new school in the Meadowvale/Sheppard area, where 500 students are bused out of the area each day because of a lack of schools
- $7.5 million for science labs
- $5 million for barrier-free/accessibility
- $3.5 million for water quality
- $11 million for structural improvements
- Money for energy projects, playgrounds

Running Yonge on the longest day of the year

SOLSTICE When long-distance runner Sean McSweeney wakes up tomorrow, he will have calves bloated to twice their size, swollen hands and muscles aching from head to toe. "It'll be a slow day," he concedes. "Your body's like a snow globe that's been shaken pretty hard. It takes a while to settle down."

Physical hardships aside, though, McSweeney, 42, will also wake with a satisfying sense of accomplishment. This morning, he and a dozen other runners set out from top of Yonge Street, way up in Barrie. If all goes as planned, they will arrive by evening where Yonge hits Lake Ontario at Queens Quay — 15 hours and 92 kilometres later.

They call it Run With The Sun, named after the summer solstice, the longest day of the year. And if compounding the ordeal of running Canada's longest street by adding in maximum exposure to sunlight seems crazy, then consider McSweeney's motive.

In 2004, his wife Nicole, 41, was diagnosed with malignant melanoma, a skin cancer. Suddenly forced by intimate circumstances to become familiar with how to stay safe in the sun, McSweeney wanted to help others benefit from his experience. (His wife is OK, he adds. "We caught it early.")

Today, with a forecast of 28 C and a UV index of 9, the runners will start out bare-headed, but by sunrise will don hats with long cowls covering their necks. Every five kilometres, they will reapply 60 SPF sunscreen — "basically, gallons of the stuff," McSweeney said.

Risky three days for Harper

G20 Summit

They've been dubbed the "accountability" summit and the "austerity" summit, but as Prime Minister Stephen Harper prepares to host historic back-to-back, high-level meetings this week, he risks appearing neither austere nor accountable.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper responds to a question during a question-and-answer session earlier this year at the G8/G20 Business Summit in Gatineau, Que.

For 72 hours, the world's most powerful people will surge into Southern Ontario, complete with enormous entourages, and thousands of journalists in tow.

First, leaders from the G8 rich countries — plus 10 guests from developing nations — will hold their "accountability" summit on Friday afternoon and much of Saturday near Huntsville, Ont., at a lakeside in cottage country. They'll discuss peace, security, and maternal health, with an emphasis on proving how well they can keep their promises.

Then, they'll zip down to Toronto for a larger Group of 20 meeting on Saturday night and Sunday, dining at the stately Royal York Hotel, and then gathering at the more functional Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

There, they will wrangle over how to control ballooning deficits, stabilize banks, and open up the wallets of Asian consumers. If Harper has his way, the deficit countries will commit to a decade of austerity, so the global economy can get back on track.

The pressure is on to produce solid results from the summits. "Failure to deliver is not an option," Harper wrote in a letter to G20 leaders last week.

The main accomplishment at the G8 summit will be an aid package to improve the health of mothers and babies in developing countries, says Janice Stein, director of the Munk School of Global Affairs at the University of Toronto.

The idea of the G8 pumping money into a forgotten, desperate and worthy cause has been widely accepted, Stein said, but Ottawa is having trouble attracting donations.

Concrete results from the G20 summit are equally up in the air.

If the G20 has any hope of establishing itself as an international body that is useful for more than just putting out fires like the global financial crisis, it has to agree to substantive economic and financial reforms, says Wendy Dobson, co-director of the University of Toronto's Institute for International Business.

The G20 can easily reiterate principles that they've agreed to in the past, but true progress, with numbers and targets and timelines attached, will take hard-core negotiating down to the last minute, said Tom Bernes, acting executive director at the Centre for International Governance Innovation in Waterloo.

"They have to deliver and show they are more than a crisis committee," Bernes said. "It is a testing ground."

Not just for the G20, but Harper too.

How to spend $1.24B in 72 hours

SPENDING The federal government is spending at least $1.24 billion on the G8 and G20 summits. Here's where the money is going:

- $930 million for security, as detailed in the government's estimates, supplementary estimates, and comments from Public Safety Minister Vic Toews.
- $50 million for G8 Legacy Fund
- $78.5 million for Foreign Affairs to host the G8 in Muskoka, from the 2010-2011 main estimates.
- $101 million for various departments to organize G20 summit, from 2010-2011 supplementary estimates.
- $10 million for Border Infrastructure Fund, from 2010-2011 supplementary estimates.
- $31 million for G8 hosting and organizing (various departments), from 2009-2010 supplementary estimates
- $1.4 million to Public Works for G8 organizing, from 2010-2011 supplementary estimates.
- $16.6 million to Public Works for G20 accommodation, from 2009-2010 supplementary estimates.
- $8 million to Public Works to organize and host G8, from 2009-2010 supplementary estimates.
- $6 million to Finance and other departments to organize G8, from 2009-2010 supplementary estimates.
- $1.6 million to Privy Council Office to organize Olympics and G8 security, from 2008-2009 supplementary estimates.
- $2 million to Privy Council Office to co-ordinate Olympics and G8 security, from 2009-2010 main estimates.

Summit projects that caused controversy

SPENDING The federal government is spending at least $1.24 billion on the G8 and G20 summits. Some projects that have stirred controversy:

Fake lake: $1.9 million on a "marketing pavilion" at the Toronto media centre that includes a fake lake, canoes, giant screen TV, bar, replica of the Toronto Stock Exchange, and Muskoka chairs.

Port-a-potties: $416,387 for 600 portable toilets near the G8 site outside Huntsville, Ont.

Big rock: $194,000 for a Welcome Granite Stone in Parry Sound, about 80 km from the G8 summit.

Sidewalks: $125,000 to brick over sidewalks and build a band shell in Sundridge, 60 kilometres from the G8 summit.

Decorations: $167,000 to hire a decorator and develop a "fine arts strategy" for the G8 and G20 summits.

Landscaping: $745,000 to spruce up the downtowns of Rosseau, Humphrey and Orrville — far from the G8 summit, where dignitaries have no intention of travelling.

Food safety: $1.2 million for Health Canada, mainly to make sure the food eaten by the dignitaries and their entourages is safe.

Truck brings peace of mind

Residents get chance to shred personal papers to avoid ID theft

One was paying his kids to destroy them. Another was blacking his out with a marker. And a third was squirrelling hers away in boxes.

So imagine their delight on the weekend when they watched a big brown truck eat all their old, unwanted personal papers in the parking lot of a Durham Region police station.

"This is just fantastic. Thanks for doing this," Whitby dweller Lillian Fletcher told fraud squad officers after dumping boxes of family documents dating back to 1975 into a bin for shredding.

In a novel effort to prevent identity theft, police teamed up with Super-Shred, an Etobicoke company that destroys the force's papers, to offer a free disposal service at two police stations. The event was a rip-roaring success as dozens of security-conscious residents carted bags, boxes and laundry baskets brimming with papers to be slashed into tiny fragments by the blade in the truck's bowels.

"This is just fantastic. Thanks for doing this."
Lillian Fletcher, Whitby resident

The illegible bits — enough to fill 26,100 litres when the truck is full — are sent to a recycling depot, operator Kirk Francis explained.

That's a big relief to Fletcher and her "nervous Nellie" sister, who insisted she witness the destruction.

"I collected stuff from my family like tax returns, billings, everything that had a name and address," said Fletcher.

'Priority neighbourhoods' on mayoral debate agenda

DISCUSSION An event sponsored by the Canadian Black Caucas put Toronto's "priority neighbourhoods" on the mayoral debate agenda for the first time, with audience members asking candidates how to improve life in those areas.

Rob Ford and George Smitherman were on hand for Saturday's debate, which tackled jobs, youths and making city hall more accessible.

Many audience members asked candidates to address the 13 neighbourhoods the United Way has highlighted as being most in need of social initiatives.

Ford talked about the trades being viable job opportunities, saying that 250 of the 300 employees at his personal printing company were "visible minorities" making "$80,000 to $90,000 a year."

Smitherman made much of the ongoing Regent Park revitalization, pointing to 40 apprenticeship positions with the developer as a successful job-creation model.

Man who claimed to be doctor under investigation

CRIME He bills himself as a "doctor." His CV boasts a PhD in psychology.

But it turns out that Gregory Carter, 63, of Whitby, is no doctor. His PhD is from a U.S. diploma mill.

Nevertheless, "Dr. Carter" worked under contract for six years with the Durham Children's Aid Society and has weighed in on family court and child custody cases.

Now there are serious concerns that children may have been inappropriately placed because of his recommendations.

Tomorrow, Carter faces a disciplinary hearing at the College of Psychologists of Ontario. He already faces criminal charges and police are expected to lay more within weeks.

Carter is a "psychological associate," a profession that is a step down from psychologist. While some associates can make diagnoses, others, like Carter, can do so only under supervision.

Like father, like son?

Health agencies re-evaluate circumcision

To some, it is a cultural ritual. Others consider it a cosmetic procedure that ensures a son will look like his father. A growing faction believes it can save lives. Still others say it is a desecration of the human body.

Male circumcision has long incited debate over its merit.

But the controversy over preserving an infant boy's foreskin has reached a new frenzy as Canadian and U.S. health authorities are poised this summer to issue major evaluations on circumcision and its potential health benefits.

The reassessments by the Canadian Pediatric Society (CPS) and the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) are being welcomed by pediatricians who say the new guidance for parents is long overdue. Critics, however, are incensed the procedure — which they liken to genital mutilation — is even being talked about in medical circles.

"Proponents of circumcision have been chasing rationales for the last 150 years," said Georganne Chapin, executive director of the advocacy group Intact America. "You cannot be cutting off healthy body parts from healthy babies and justifying it for some punitive medical benefits down the line."

Currently, the CPS and the AAP say the procedure is not medically necessary. That stance could change in light of recent studies that have shown circumcised heterosexual males are less likely to contract HIV and other sexually transmitted infections than men whose foreskins are intact.

"We are looking at what recommendations may or may not be appropriate for adult heterosexual men, men who have sex with men, as well as infant males," said CDC spokesperson Jennifer Horvath.

In Canada, rates of hospital circumcisions have dropped precipitously from 35,731 male infants in 1995-1996 down to 13,157 infants in 2008-2009, according to the Canadian Institute for Health Information (CIHI).

Vigilante justice

Two Barrie men have been charged after police say an axe-wielding man sought vigilante justice. Barrie police responded Friday night to a call of an "out of control" man with an axe. After an investigation, the cops charged a 58-year-old man with sexual assault and sexual interference. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Lt.-Gen. Andrew Leslie is stepping g down as head of the Canadian army in Kandahar. He will take charge of preparing the armed forces future assignments.

What happens after Afghanistan?

TRANSITION Lt.-Gen. Andrew Leslie, the outgoing commander of the army, marvels at the changes he's seen.

"The army's changed more over the last four to five years than over the previous 30-40," said Leslie, one of the country's more recognizable military figures.

Leslie's long been considered a candidate for the top job of chief of defence staff.

He will hand over command of the army to Lt.-Gen. Peter Devlin at a ceremony in Ottawa.

His new job will be to help shepherd the entire Canadian Forces towards its post-Afghanistan future at a time when the Conservative government is wrestling with an expected $49-billion deficit.

Leslie is the new Chief of Transformation. But the question often asked around Ottawa these days is: The Canadian Forces is being transformed, but into what?

Four years of fighting a counter-insurgency in Afghanistan has given Canada a lean, lethal, little force. It is all dressed up, and post-Afghanistan, has seemingly nowhere to go. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stafford and his son, Daryn, ride in memory of Victoria

Father's Day means something different to Rodney Stafford than to most dads.

For the father of eight-year-old Victoria Stafford, the southwestern Ontario girl killed last year, the day gives him renewed purpose to make the world safer for his son and all children.

Rodney Stafford

Rodney Stafford and his 12-year-old son Daryn are spending Sunday at the top of a mountain in Jasper, Alta., a place Victoria visited and fell in love with the summer before she died.

Two people — Terri-Lynne McClintic and Michael Rafferty — were charged with first-degree murder in her death.

On Tuesday, Stafford and his son kick off a bike ride from Edmonton back to their hometown of Woodstock, Ont., a 3,500-kilometre journey that will take them to 44 cities and towns along the way.

> "There are horrible people out there and people need to stop taking it for granted that their children are safe."
> Rodney Stafford

Stafford made the journey himself last year, from Woodstock to Edmonton, raising more than $60,000 for Child Find Ontario.

He has no monetary target for this sequel journey.

Stafford said Daryn lost his best friend in Victoria and he wants him to experience the warmth and generosity people showed him on his bike ride last year.

"My main goal is just to create awareness," Stafford said. "I want to get it out there that there are horrible people out there and parents need to stop taking it for granted that their children are safe."

The father and son are planning to make it back to Woodstock on Aug. 8. They will ride a tandem bike for most of the journey. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two arrested in murder of B.C. teen

CHARGES Exactly three months after 18-year-old Kimberly Proctor's badly burned body was discovered in a ravine along a popular Vancouver Island hiking trail, the RCMP announced Saturday the arrest of two teenagers for her "premeditated murder."

Proctor's body was discovered March 19 in Langford, a rural suburb of Victoria, in a wooded ravine along a hiking trail that runs 60 kilometres from Victoria to Sooke.

The Grade 12 student's murder shocked the small community.

On Saturday, RCMP announced that two male teens, aged 16 and 18, were arrested without incident Friday and now face charges of first-degree murder. Their names were not given. THE CANADIAN PRESS

House explodes, 2 killed

EDMONTON At least two people were killed when a home exploded in a northeast Edmonton neighbourhood Sunday, damaging over a dozen neighbouring houses and prompting an evacuation.

CTV Edmonton was reporting that one person was still unaccounted for and two people, including a child, were treated for shock after being pulled from the rubble of one home.

Fire crews were investigating whether the explosion may have been caused by a gas leak. They were also conducting a thorough search of all the structures, searching for more potential victims.

Residents of 15 homes were told to leave their damaged houses and it was unclear when they may be allowed back into the area. THE CANADIAN PRESS

News in brief

FLASH FLOOD Irvine, Alta., was hit by a flash flood Friday following weeks of rain punctuated by a sudden massive downpour that caused a nearby creek to come crashing over its banks. About 20 houses south of the town were hit the hardest, with some residents taken out by boats and helicopters. Those people weren't yet allowed home Saturday, the only bridges in were still covered in rushing water.

QUEBEC Independence rallies in Quebec are more restrained than in the heady days following the death of the Meech Lake accord. Just some 400 turned out for a march in Montreal yesterday — and a few thousand across Quebec — to mark the anniversaries of the death of Meech and the 1995 sovereignty referendum. It's a far cry from 160,000 who came out for the 1990 Fête nationale parade.

Air India: 25 years later

Victims' families prepare to mark anniversary of bombing

Twenty-five years after a suitcase bomb sent Air India Flight 182 plunging into the ocean, the families of those who died say they've learned to live with their losses.

Many will gather in sombre memorials to mark the anniversary this Wednesday in Ottawa, Toronto or Vancouver. Others will grieve privately.

"Over the years we have all come to deal with it in our own unique and distinctly personal ways," said Lata Pada, whose husband and two teenaged daughters died when a suitcase bomb downed the plane over the Atlantic Ocean about five hours after leaving Montreal for Bombay.

Another blast, at Tokyo's Narita airport just an hour earlier on June 23, 1985, killed two baggage handlers as they transferred a suitcase destined for another Air India plane.

Preeti Berar of Brampton, Ont., was three when her father, 45-year-old Jogeshwar Berar, died aboard Flight 182.

"I just remember a lot of family coming over and grieving," she said. "I remember seeing my mom living out of despair and my sisters and everyone hurting over it."

As for memories of her father, there are only bits and pieces that Berar cherishes. "I remember him washing the car, coming home from work and playing on the computer with me, or him making me breakfast," she said.

Last week, a damning report from an inquiry into the bombings concluded that a "cascading series of errors" prevented authorities from averting the tragedy and that they should have known Flight 182 was a likely terrorist target.

Only one person has ever been convicted in relation to the bombings. Inderjit Singh Reyat, an electrician from Duncan, B.C., was convicted of manslaughter for his part in supplying the explosives placed in the two suitcases that originated at Vancouver International Airport.

The Crown maintained the bombings were an act of revenge by B.C.-based Sikh separatists against government-owned Air India for a raid a year earlier at the Golden Temple, Sikhism's holiest shrine in Amritsar, India.

Chronology of events in Air India bombing saga

- June 23, 1985: Air India Flight 182 leaves Toronto and explodes in the sky off the Irish coast, killing 329 people — 278 of them Canadians. Less than an hour before, two baggage handlers at Tokyo's Narita airport are killed when a bag explodes as it is being transferred to an Air India flight.
- Nov. 8, 1985: Talwinder Singh Parmar from Burnaby, B.C., and Inderjit Singh Reyat from Duncan, B.C., are arrested in connection with bombings. Charges are dropped against Parmar. Reyat is fined for a minor, unrelated charge.
- February 1988: Reyat is arrested by police in Coventry, England, where he moved in 1986.
- May 10, 1991: Extradited and tried, Reyat is sentenced to 10 years in prison on manslaughter and explosives charges related to the Narita bombing.
- June 6, 2001: Reyat is charged in the Air India Flight 182 bombing just days before his 10-year sentence for his role in the Narita bombing is to end.
- Feb. 10, 2003: Reyat pleads guilty to one count of manslaughter and is sentenced to five years.
- May 1, 2006: Prime Minister Stephen Harper calls a public inquiry into the Air India bombing.
- June 17, 2010: Former Supreme Court Justice John Major releases his report, saying the bombing might have been prevented but for errors by police and security agencies. He says the government should consider compensating the families of victims.

Huntsville taking preparations in stride

SUMMIT As anxiety ripples through big-city Toronto, paralyzing part of the downtown ahead of the G20, small-town Huntsville has taken a typical laid-back cool, calm, cottage-country approach towards the G8.

> "People here just know how to roll with what comes along."
> Judith Brain

Unlike the trepidation seizing some Toronto residents, Huntsville folks have taken their summit all in stride. "It's the best thing that's ever happened to the town," said Steve MacAllister, owner of Langford Canoe.

The G8 summit is from June 25-26 in Huntsville and the G20 summit is from June 26-27 in Toronto.

In a phone interview, MacAllister prattled off a list of benefits the pending summit has brought to the sleepy community, which he said has become of hub of intrigue.

"Businesses are booming and there's just an electric buzz of excitement and anticipation. It's amazing," said MacAllister, his enthusiasm hard to contain.

His business has been selected to offer a gift to the G8 leaders.

According to many people in town, Huntsville's main street is packed. Pubs and restaurants have standing room only. MacAllister said the summit has given everyone a job.

Even those inconvenienced by the security zone, which wraps around Deerhurst Resort where the G8 delegates will temporarily call home, said they're not bothered by the summit.

Judith Brain, 54, has a home on Hidden Valley Road part of the "red zone," surrounded by either lake or fence.

For Brain, the fence is ugly. It covers a beautiful stretch of Highway 60. She also said army tents are practically pitched in her backyard.

But this hasn't fazed the local resident, who smiles and waves at those security officials hunkered down in the tents.

"People here just know how to roll with what comes along," said Brain, explaining her mellow attitude towards the G8.

G8 fall short on aid pledges

G8 Summit

The world's richest countries have come up short on their commitments to assist the developing world, says a new report that counts Canada among the more reliable G8 members.

The report released yesterday says the OECD and Group of Eight countries are $10 billion behind the five-year, $50-billion increase they promised at their 2005 summit in Scotland.

The document prepared by the Foreign Affairs Department prior to this week's Ontario summits says some G8 members — like Canada — are meeting or surpassing their goals, but it says others are not.

There has been significant progress in some areas, it finds, but it says there are still problems in key areas like disease prevention, water and sanitation, and maternal and child mortality.

"Universal access targets with respect to HIV/AIDS will not be met by 2010 and many developing countries, in particular those in Africa, remain off-track to achieve the health-related (goals)," it says.

"The (goals) on child mortality and maternal health are proving the toughest area in which to make progress."

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has made maternal and child health a signature element of this year's G8 in Huntsville.

But while sources say Canada has put $1 billion on the table, other cash-strapped governments appear less willing to ante-up.

G8 countries are to be commended for their commitment to accountability, acknowledges World Vision's Caroline Riseboro. But she cautions the goals they set are too low and the report offers no plan for how catch up in areas where there are shortfalls.

Minister of International Co-operation Bev Oda, left, answers questions from the media yesterday as Minister of Foreign Affairs Lawrence Cannon listens following the release of the G8 Accountability Report in Ottawa.

A beginner's guide to the upcoming G8 summit

What is it?: A forum for eight of the world's leading democracies to discuss and resolve global issues.

Summits: Each country takes turns holding a leaders summit once a year, preceded by meetings of foreign ministers, finance ministers and occasionally ministers for labour, environment, energy and international development.

2010 summit: Canada is hosting this year's summit June 25-26 at the Deerhurst Resort in Huntsville. It's dubbed the Muskoka Summit, named after the affluent cottage country surrounding Huntsville. This is the fifth time for Canada to host since it joined the group in 1976.

What's new? The G8 has traditionally focused on global issues such as economics, security, and health. Last September, leaders at the fledgling G20 decided the larger group should take over responsibility for economic issues, since the G20 encompasses huge emerging economic powers such as China, India and Brazil.

Canadian who met his Waterloo honoured

MILITARY Capt. Alexander Macnab of the 2nd Battalion, 30th Foot Guards was one of thousands of soldiers killed and unceremoniously buried on the famous battlefield near the small Belgian community of Waterloo.

Those few historians who have written about him agree that Macnab's military career was less than distinguished, especially in comparison with the many larger-than-life characters whose names to this day are associated with the Battle of Waterloo. Yet despite a less-than-illustrious career and an obscure death, Macnab has been accorded the rare tribute of having a marble tablet to his memory affixed to the walls of London's St. Paul's Cathedral. His one claim to fame seems to have been that, as far as can be determined, he was the only Canadian known to have participated in this epic battle that took place about 15 kilometres south of Brussels.

Apparently, on the strength of this assertion, his Canadian descendants were successful in having a commemorative plaque placed in what is known as the "Canadian Corner" of the cathedral in 1876. Nearby is a bust of Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald. Not far away is the crypt of the Duke of Wellington, the victor at Waterloo, as well as a monument to Lt.-Gen. Sir Thomas Picton.

Nova Scotia goes buggy over ants

Their stingers are invisible to the naked eye. But just one prick from a European fire ant and you could be left with a welt the size of a toonie.

Some say the sting lasts about 15 minutes; others insist it's more than 24 hours. What's not in dispute, according to those who have been stung, is how much a sting hurts.

The tiny red-brown ants have invaded parts of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, Quebec and Maine. In Halifax, the aggressive pests — known in the scientific community as Myrmica rubra Linnaeus — have infested urban properties in several neighbourhoods. There are stories of homeowners wearing protective rubber boots while mowing their lawns and children and pets being banned from playing in their backyards.

Adding to the misery is the difficulty of stamping out the ants' massive colonies, which can be tens of thousands strong with hundreds of queens.

Sprays and home remedies like water-and-borax solutions haven't done the job.

"There has been no successful eliminations at all anywhere," says Susan Horton, 39, a master of science student at Saint Mary's University, who is studying the species as part of her thesis.

"Unless the entire colony is taken care of, the ants will come back."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Whereabouts

- There have been reports of fire ants in parts of Nova Scotia for decades, but the species was only formally identified two years ago. While they have also been reported in parts of Quebec and along the Canada-U.S. border in New Brunswick, Susan Horton says the density isn't the same as Halifax. They're also scattered throughout the Toronto area, specifically in Richmond Hill.

Scores killed in China flooding

Nearly a million displaced as storms burst river banks

Major rivers burst their banks in southern China, triggering massive floods that have killed 132 people and forced 860,000 to flee their homes, the government said yesterday. With dozens missing and more storms forecast, the death toll was expected to rise.

More than 10 million people have been affected since torrential rains began June 13, including those who have been injured, stranded or have suffered property losses, the Ministry of Water Resources said in a news release.

While the death toll was up from 90 on Saturday, the number of evacuees was lower than the previous day's figure of 1.4 million. Another 86 people are still missing.

China sustains major flooding annually along the mighty Yangtze and other major rivers, but this year's floods have been especially heavy, spreading across nine provinces and regions in the south and along the eastern coast, and causing great damage.

Thousands of houses have been destroyed and economic losses have topped 14 billion yuan, the ministry said.

Government will allow all non-military items into Gaza

Israel pledged yesterday it will immediately allow all goods into Gaza except weapons and other items deemed to have a military use under its decision to ease its three-year-old blockade of the Palestinian territory.

The list of banned goods replaces an old list of allowed items that permitted only basic humanitarian supplies for the 1.5 million Gazans. Under the new system, the government said practically all non-military items can enter Gaza freely.

Wider entry

- The Israeli government said the purpose of the new regulations was to protect Israeli citizens from "terrorism, rocket attacks and any other hostile activity," while at the same time widening the entry of civilian products into Gaza.

"From now on, there is a green light of approval for all goods to enter Gaza except for military items and materials that can strengthen Hamas' military machine," Israeli government spokesman Mark Regev said.

Israel decided Thursday to ease the blockade under intense international pressure after its raid on a blockade-busting international flotilla bound for Gaza ended violently.

In a critical shift, Israel said it would allow construction materials into Gaza for projects approved by the Palestinian Authority, such as schools, as long as the projects are under international supervision.

Emirate to beef up CCTV network

The Dubai police chief says the Gulf emirate will beef up its surveillance capability after the January murder of a Hamas operative and will have "cameras everywhere."

Lt. Gen. Dahi Khalfan Tamim says the existing network of 25,000 security cameras has helped police "pull the strings together" and "identify suspects" in the assassination of Mahmoud al-Mabhouh.

His remarks were published yesterday in The National newspaper.

'Dead spots'

- Lt. Gen. Dahi Khalfan Tamim said Dubai will spend $136 million for more cameras that will cover "dead spots" in the city.

Dubai police released a 10-minute compilation of video surveillance showing several of 32 identified suspects arriving at Dubai airport, entering a hotel and riding an elevator with the victim. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANHUNT Jamaica has tripled the cash reward it is offering for information leading to the arrest of a reputed drug lord at the centre of a bloody manhunt. A police statement released yesterday said $60,000 is being offered for Christopher Coke, Jamaica's most-wanted fugitive. Police had initially offered $20,000. The man known as "Dudus" is being sought on U.S. drug- and gun-running charges. Federal authorities say he is one of the world's most dangerous drug barons. Jamaican security forces increased the award nearly a month after their four-day assault on Coke's West Kingston stronghold that left 76 dead. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egypt security beat protesters at rally

Egyptian protesters say security forces beat and arrested dozens as they tried to hold another rally against police brutality.

For the past 10 days, protesters have taken to the streets over the death of Khaled Said, a 28-year old Alexandria businessman following an encounter with plainclothes security.

A picture circulated after his death showed his jaw split, teeth broken and blood pouring from his head. Police officials denied torture claims, saying he died after attempting to swallow a packet of drugs and choking to death.

A security official confirmed at least 40 people were detained yesterday.

Activists say Said's death is an example of routine police torture in Egypt.

The government denies torture is systematic and said the death is under investigation.

Witnesses said police attacked protesters and journalists during the march in downtown Cairo.

Attorney Peter Erlinder, left, joined by his lawyers in Nairobi yesterday, was freed on medical grounds from prison in Rwanda. He worked on legal defence for Victoire Ingabire, a Hutu.

Lawyer alleges no help from embassy

RWANDA A U.S. lawyer released from a Rwanda prison on medical grounds credited America's Secretary of State with his release, but said yesterday the U.S. Embassy did not help him secure food or medicine while in prison.

Peter Erlinder, 62, said he had to sleep on a concrete floor without a blanket and without assistance from the embassy after his May 28 arrest in Kigali, Rwanda's capital.

"My government insisted that I take my medications from my captors rather than bringing me medications directly," Erlinder told media in Nairobi, his first public comments since his arrest. "It was impossible for them to arrange a doctor whom I would pay."

He added that it wasn't clear to him that "my own embassy was working in my interests." He did not elaborate.

A Rwandan judge ruled Thursday that Erlinder, a lawyer at the International Criminal Tribunal of Rwanda, should be freed from prison on medical grounds.

Rwandan authorities detained Erlinder on suspicion of what it calls minimizing the country's 1994 genocide in which hundreds of thousands of Rwandans, the vast majority of them ethnic Tutsis, were massacred by extremist Hutus over 100 days.

Don't worry, they'll be gone soon

InTransit

Ed Drass

metronews.ca/intransit

Toronto is going to be tested during the next week. The GTA will become increasingly difficult to move around and by the weekend our home will fall under the world's attention. For a few moments the planet is going to switch its focus from football matches to politicians playing serious economic games.

If past global summits are an indication, there will also be images of police and protesters — plus the occasional profile story about an orderly, multicultural city in a northern land.

Beyond the TV screens and headlines, Torontonians will go about their daily lives, or try to. The world will not care if Highway 427 or the Gardiner is closed down for a motorcade, but commuters caught in gridlock will.

How we deal with the disruptions to our daily habits will say a lot about us. Are we going to grumble when told our train is to be delayed … indefinitely? Snap at each other as we exit a bus or streetcar that is suddenly taken out of service?

Quick tip

- Keep a close eye on ttc.ca and gotransit.com — but don't expect delay info to be as complete or timely as desired.

Possibly, but there are also those moments when strangers are forced to share unexpected difficulties — and the normal, cold boundaries between people briefly drop away.

So instead of fleeing Toronto for the week let's continue to enjoy our city, including the core. Despite an insane amount of money being spent on the G20, downtown businesses are going to hurt. The rest of us can help reduce the financial pain by intentionally frequenting restaurants and shops in and near the security zones.

The possibility of encountering an angry demonstration is more likely than we have ever experienced here, and a lot less fun than witnessing jubilant soccer fans take over the streets. However, in both cases you will likely hear the noise from far enough away to avoid being caught in the middle.

We can continue to live our lives, but with a bit more awareness.

For example, transit riders have been warned to bring a snack in case of delays. A good pair of walking shoes may also be a good idea, particularly for Lakeshore West GO train users.

You never know when you'll have to get off at Exhibition station and hoof it the rest of the way.

HIV-positive label creates difficult-to-change opinions

Re: Ford feels 'set up' with tape (June 18)

As I was reading the newspaper Friday, June 18, I came across an article discussing the latest scandal in the Toronto race for mayor. It detailed candidate Rob Ford's telephone conversation with a man interested in procuring drugs. Before details of the phone conversation were divulged, however, my attention was caught by the article's lead, proclaiming Ford was, "Trying to explain a taped phone conversation between himself and an HIV-positive man." In what way did this man's HIV-positive status relate to the situation? I read on in the hope that it would become clear.

Instead of learning about why the man's HIV-positive status was important to the story, I discovered that the man speaking to Ford was attempting to procure the painkiller OxyContin and he suffers from fibromyalgia, a serious and chronic pain condition. The relevance as to why his HIV status was disclosed, let alone mentioned in the article's lead, was never made clear to me.

"HIV status is an incredibly personal piece of information to divulge, and not something that should be taken lightly."

Despite the many attempts to reduce the discrimination targeted at people living with HIV, fear of disclosure remains a top concern for many people infected by the virus. This is due to the label often placed upon people living with HIV. Society often defines people living with HIV as "HIV-positive" before they define them as human beings. This discrimination can be exacerbated when a cavalier attitude is taken to publicly releasing the HIV status of individuals within the media.

HIV status is an incredibly personal piece of information to divulge, and not something that should be taken lightly. To release such information in a newspaper without a valid reason for doing so may further the unfounded discrimination that often accompanies discovering someone's HIV-positive status.

To label someone as HIV-positive creates the opportunity for people to form inaccurate and hurtful opinions about the individual; opinions that are often difficult to change once made.

G20 could slow TSX trading

Traffic, protest threats expected to keep many clients away

The Toronto stock market could be in for some sideways trading on lower than usual volume this week as the G20 summit rolls into the heart of a financial district in lockdown mode.

It's not that trading operations of the big financial firms will be diminished in any way, but with traffic in knots, a threat of violent protests and ultra-heavy security, a lot of clients will plan on being anywhere except Toronto. Regular trading floors will be staffed, but at diminished levels with many financial institutions moving operations elsewhere, far away from the G20 meeting site.

Trading in the Canadian dollar on the other hand should be unaffected, said George Davis, chief technical analyst at RBC Capital Markets, because currency trading is much more global than equity trading.

"A lot of the financial institutions that are here in downtown Toronto can move things offsite or just divert things to their U.S. operations."

Meanwhile, two events this week could move markets. The U.S. Federal Reserve holds its two-day meeting on interest rates with an announcement coming out Wednesday.

And at the end of the week, investors will get the latest reading on economic growth. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Positive end to June?

- The TSX looks set to end June trading on a positive note after tumbling about 3.6 per cent during May on rising worries about the European debt crisis.
- The TSX is close to where it started the year and there isn't a lot of optimism about the second half of the trading year.

A Chinese bank clerk counts renminbi banknotes yesterday. China's central bank said it would maintain a stable exchange rate and didn't anticipate major changes in the value of the yuan.

China placates its critics by promising to let yuan float

CURRENCY China's decision to end its currency's two-year-old peg to the U.S. dollar is stirring anticipation of a gradual appreciation in the yuan in trading today — an increase that would bring relief to foreign manufacturers struggling to compete with cheap Chinese products.

Beijing has long refused to allow the yuan, also known as the renminbi, to float and denied accusations its currency is unfairly undervalued.

China, however, is still steering a path to recovery, and with workers at home demanding wage hikes — which would also increase the price of exports — the central bank has sought to curb speculation of a major strengthening of the yuan's value.

"There is at present no basis for major fluctuation or change in the renminbi exchange rate," the People's Bank of China said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Slow rise halted

- Under pressure from its trading partners, China began letting the yuan appreciate gradually against the U.S. dollar in 2005, but halted that in 2008 as the global financial crisis took effect.
- Since then, the yuan's value has remained at roughly 6.83 to $1 US.

WestJet says seat sales still around

AIRLINES WestJet Airlines says recent fare changes mean customers won't have to wait around for seat sales anymore, but the airline isn't doing away with last-minute bargains all-together.

"Seat sales are not going away. We will continue to have them from time to time, as required," WestJet vice-president Richard Bartrem said Friday.

WestJet announced last week it would offer lower fares 330 days ahead of time. It is also reducing its top fares by an average of 25 per cent. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rogers paying back $30 million

BILLING Rogers Communications is reimbursing hundreds of thousands of current and former customers a total of $30 million because of a billing mistake, the company said Friday.

Rogers said the money will go to about 300,000 subscribers to its Better Choice Bundles discount program who were overcharged. Affected customers are to be notified by letter starting Tuesday and the correct discount will be applied within their next two bills, Rogers said.

The inaccuracy is a result of administrative error and system related issues, the company said, adding it varies for each customer depending on the number of services they have and how long they've been in the program.

200,000

About 200,000 customers who were underbilled under the program will not be charged the difference.

"Once we identified the issue, we initiated a comprehensive review of current and former customer accounts to identify those that were not correctly billed," Phil Hartling, senior vice-president, consumer segment, said in a news release.

Existing under-discounted customers will receive a credit on their account while former customers will receive a cheque. Any unclaimed funds by former customers will be donated to charity.

Rogers introduced the Better Choice Bundles program to offer customers a discount when they purchase two or more eligible communications services with a two-year contract term and a consolidated monthly invoice. THE CANADIAN PRESS

What to wear by the water

Be sun savvy

Smart summer beauties sport sun protection

Whether you're heading to the cottage, planning a bike trip or staying home and exploring your city, you'll likely be spending more time in the sun come summer.

This means planning ahead and arming yourself with proper protection from the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. Here are a few tips:

Pack or stock up on sunscreen. An average adult needs about 2 tablespoons to cover the body. Since a 300 ml bottle has about 8-10 applications, every adult will need one bottle for a 10-day trip, says dermatologist Dr. Gordon Searles, of Edmonton.

Don't forget sunglasses and hats — preferably ones that cover the back of the neck. Check out other sun protective gear, too. "These hats, bathing suits and other summer clothes are quite fashionable and widely available," says Dr. Searles. If that's not feasible, pack tightly woven clothes.

Remember to pack moisturizer to keep your skin hydrated while out in the sun — even better if it has an SPF rating.

Even if you're snorkeling, you'll need water-proof protection. "The sun's rays can penetrate up to 6 feet of water," warns Dr. Searles.

Put sunscreen on 20-30 minutes before heading to the beach, boat, pool or trail. Apply it to your arms, legs, chest and face. Remember your feet, ears, hands and lips. "People often forget about their scalp," says Dr. Searles. "If you get wet, your hair separates and your part gets wider and that's an area that doesn't typically see a lot of sun, so you can get quite an unpleasant sunburn." Reapply the sunscreen every 1-2 hours.

Start your day the right way

Live real and face the world beautifully every day

RELAX Living authentically — that is, not worrying about what others think of you — could make a difference to your beauty and glow, says Dr. Sarah Freke, a family physician who practises as a psychoanalyst in Toronto. "Worrying can make you tense, and that will affect your posture and your facial muscles." Relax, get some gentle exercise and be good to yourself, and it will show.

Slow starts to the day get Dr. Freke's approval. "It's tremendously useful to have quiet time first thing in the morning," she says. Gentle activities such as yoga, a quiet walk and slow stretching are good, but so is lying in bed and thinking through how your day will shape up. That lying and thinking, says Dr. Freke, is healthy "brain-working time." Giving yourself time to think can take the stressful edge off of a busy life — and relax a harried expression.

Here's how to get your glow on!

How do they do it? Those women who look fresh and radiant while the rest of us resemble Popsicles melting in the summer heat? Read on to get the 'glow-how' on summer beauty with minimum products for maximum effect.

Daytime cool

Despite what you've seen on Jersey Shore, summer does not start at the tanning salon. Instead, use gradual self-tanner and build natural looking colour (not Snooki orange) over a period of days. And remember, faux tans offer no sun protection, so always apply sunscreen before heading outdoors.

Expert beauty tips!

Carmindy, the L.A.-based celebrity make-up artist featured on the TV series 'What Not to Wear' and author of the new beauty-tip bible, Crazy Busy Beautiful (Harper Studio, $15), modifies her 'basic day face' with a few simple humidity-busting tricks. For the oily-skinned, she recommends mattifying gel underneath a light layer of foundation dusted with powder. Powder instead of cream blush stays put in the heat and she likes to "keep eyes simple with waterproof eyeliner in indigo or jade green on the upper lash line" finishing with a coat of waterproof mascara.

Finally, swap your lipstick for a bold yet sheer orange or pink gloss that flatters bronzed and pale complexions alike.

Of course, if you feel naked without lipstick, try this spare, dramatic look favoured by Toronto-based makeup artist Grace Lee: a strong orange-red or fuchsia matte lip paired with nothing but mascara'd (waterproof, or course) eyes. "Just fill your entire lip with matching pencil, then apply lipstick, blot and it will last all day," says Lee.

Nighttime glow

A couple of key additions can turn a day look into night. "Waterproof dark liner in the inner rim of your eye takes literally seconds but makes a huge impact in creating definition and drama," says Lee.

Shimmer bronzer adds instant smudge-proof sparkle. Even the pale can get their shimmer on with rose-gold tones over the more traditional caramel to toffee shades. "Apply along the sides of your face and right underneath the cheekbones," says Carmindy.

Next, apply a lighter shade of shimmer powder to shoulders and décolletage, finish up with a slick of golden shimmer gloss (layered over lipstick or alone) and hit the patio, humidity be damned.

5 steps to spectacular summer skin

Summer beauty is easy to achieve – all it takes is a few simple steps.

1 Cleanse
Increased exposure to sun, water and air conditioning all work toward dehydrating your skin, says aesthetician Giovanna Manchisi, senior manager of spa services at Toronto's Elmwood Spa. She suggests choosing a hydrating cleanser that removes all the skin impurities and leaves no residue.

2 Exfoliate
Manchisi suggests exfoliating twice a week after using cleanser because sun, sand and sunscreen contribute to dead skin cell build-up.

The caveat, says Dr Frances Jang, dermatologist and owner of Vancouver's Skinworks, is to make sure the exfoliant is matched to your skin. Light fair skin, for example, might be too delicate for a granular scrub, but oily skin with clogged pores is fine for it.

Mechanical exfoliants — grains and loofahs — should be used with care with certain skins, since abrasions can leave the skin open to hyper-pigmentation (dark spots) from sun.

3 Tone
Toners are often an overlooked part of the system. But, says Manchisi, they are actually a key component in calming skin and closing pores. The ones that contain witch hazel are good for the skin. Steer clear of any that contain alcohol, she says, because it can strip the skin of its natural oil.

4 Moisturize
Always finish with a moisturizer that is lighter than your rich winter cream. Without moisturizer, the skin produces sebum, which creates a greasy layer that can clog pores. And when summer heat dehydrates the skin, you lose the natural glow too.

5 Antioxidants
Exfoliant products that contain antioxidants, such as vitamins A, C, E, or AHA (alphahydroxy), lactic acid and retin-A, may help protect against sun damage and aging. As Dr. Jang explains, "UV damage creates free radicals on skin and they in turn create the sun damage. You can neutralize these free radicals with antioxidants such as vitamins E and C."

Vitamin A in the form of retin-A may help build up new collagen. Speak to a skin expert for more information — this product may irritate sensitive skin.

Water works

HYDRATE When Patricia Chuey's son was five years old, he caught a frog — and then forgot about it. The poor thing shriveled up and died, but it provided an opportunity for the B.C.-based consulting dietician to have a chat with her boy about the need for hydration. The frog was an apt illustration of why our skin, like every part of our body, requires water.

You may prefer to think of grapes and raisins, but the fact remains, we all need water, especially in the coming hot months. How much?

The general rule, Chuey says, is one millilitre of water per calorie consumed… if you eat a typical 2,000 calories per day, that would add up to about two litres or eight glasses of water a day.

It doesn't have to be water — milk, fruit juice, even tea and coffee will do (as long as they aren't super strong). Watery fruits, veggies and soup also contribute.

During exercise, she recommends drinking about a quarter cup of water every 15 to 20 minutes.

By the time you feel thirsty it's too late, says Chuey. You are already in the early stages of dehydration.

Fuss-free summer hair trends

Simple strategies that really work

Want a warm weather coif that looks great? Here are tips for simple styles, frizz-fighters and UV screens.

"The number one trend for summer is natural hair, letting hair dry naturally in sculpted styles," says Alain Larivée, stylist and co-owner of CAJH Maitres Coiffeurs in Montreal.

Start with a shampoo and conditioner for your hair type, says Larivée. Apply a curl-enhancing cream or anti-frizz serum immediately after the shower (skip the towel-turban step — it causes frizz). "Work the product through from the top to the ends, and work hair into shape while it's wet," he advises.

To keep hair back from the face, Larivée suggests braids and loose chignons as hot hot-weather styles. Try working the casual side braid, which hit big after Alexander Wang's Spring/Summer 2010 show; twist it into a little side bun if you want to get it off your neck. Get easy how-to tips and videos via Google.

If you're not in a braidy mood, a simple clean pony-tail is a classic keep-cool do, especially for naturally straight hair. Greg May, owner of Greg May Hair Architects in Toronto, likes the sophistication of a low ponytail fastened at the nape of the neck. Go for a high ponytail for a younger look; follow the line of your jaw for optimal placement.

For added frizz control, consider a glaze treatment, which will crank up shine and help keep the cuticle smoother through several shampoos. May uses a soy-protein based demi-permanent shine formula in his salon, which replaces lost amino acids and comes in tinted versions to boost colour intensity. Clear demi-permanent DIY glazes are also available at the drugstore.

When it comes to sun exposure, many salon and drugstore products offer built-in UV protection, (which also helps prevent colour fading) and they say so on their labels. May also highlights Argan oil, which is available in drugstores and salons, as a protective agent. "Ferulic acid is part of its composition — it has high antioxidant properties to fight UV rays," he explains.

Mario Verrilli of Onaré Salon in Mississauga says to risk sun exposure only in small doses. "If you have colour-treated hair, a hat is the best protection."

If you're a pool – or beach – bunny, minimize damage by wetting your hair before jumping in. "Hair can absorb only so much water," he says. "Lightly coating hair with a cream conditioner — preferably a biodegradeable one —before entering the water will also help."

Humidex high? Here's how to fight back

TIPS "Humidity causes increased sweat and oil, causing follicles and pores to clog," says Laura Kingston, an esthetics instructor at Concepts School of Cosmetology in Halifax. Common areas affected are the face, neck, back, chest and feet. Shower every day, but "avoid harsh, drying products like soap and astringent," says Kingston. Here are her recommendations for treating the following humidity-induced skin issues at home (for persistent problems, consult a doctor, dermatologist or pharmacist).

Acne

This can flare up on humid days. To prevent breakouts, use a facial cleanser that doesn't make skin feel dry, tight or sore; exfoliate with a product containing alpha hydroxyl acid (AHA) or one that's acid-based; use a gentle toner such as witch hazel; and apply a light moisturizer. Put on sunscreen last, but before makeup.

Fungal infections

Apply an antifungal foot cream to athlete's foot and put tea tree oil on affected toenails, which will be thick and yellow.

Bacterial infections

These can present as colourless patches of skin on the chest, shoulders and back. Use a dandruff shampoo as a body wash, says Kingston, or dab it straight onto dry skin.

Heat rashes

They can appear anywhere, from around the nose and mouth to the groin and underarms. To relieve redness and itchiness, apply pure aloe vera gel, witch hazel or a paste of oatmeal and water.

Help your hairdo

According to Debbie LeFort, a master hair-styling instructor at Concepts, humidity makes straight hair limp and curly hair frizzy. "Regardless of hair type, if you want to hold your style, don't touch your hair after you've sprayed it," says LeFort.

Straight hair

Use a volumizing shampoo and conditioner, work in mousse from the end of the hair shaft to the root. Dry, style and finish with a spray that says "anti-humidity" or "anti-humectant" on the bottle.

Curly hair

Use a moisture-balanced shampoo, then follow the same steps for straight hair. (On really humid days, you might have to give in and embrace the volume.)

Good morning sunshine

Five sure-fire ways to start the day with a beauty boost.

1 Keep your blinds and your windows partly open at night

Waking up with natural light is a naturally cheery way to wake up. Natural light may also tell your biological clock that it's time to rise, by increasing your adrenaline levels. Over time, you may be able to rely on your biological clock instead of the shrill ringing of your alarm — and guess which wake-up call is more calming?

2 Start your day calm

Marilyn Freeman, a retired teacher in Kingston, Ont., admits to being a type-A person. "I want to jump out of bed and start running around accomplishing things," says Freeman, an avid cyclist, hiker, paddler and volunteer. Instead she gets up and does yoga in a quiet room in her house. Sometimes she listens to a tape, other times she opens her windows and listens to birdsongs. As well as providing stretch and strength benefits, yoga calms Freeman. "In a world that sometimes appears to be spiralling out of control, yoga gives me a sense of personal control."

3 Cuddle with your kids

Waking up to a grouchy kid can start the whole family off on a downer day. Instead of a screechy wake-up call, try waking your kids gently and affectionately. If your children are young, wake them with hugs and kisses. If they're older, try an affectionate head massage and firm but gentle wake-up words. Kid-time is precious, and morning hugs can ensure a heart-warming hello to everyone's day.

4 Get up on the right side of the bed

This isn't a spatial directive, but a psychological one — at least for Cheryl Embrett, a Toronto writer and mother. "Before I get out of bed I think about five things I'm going to be grateful for that day." Her thoughts can be as simple as being thankful for having good coffee to brew. Embrett says, "My negativity was sucking energy. Now I've noticed a difference and my husband finds me much more positive."

5 Walk in fresh air

Slip into comfy clothes first thing in the morning and head outdoors for a 20 to 30 minute walk. A walk can lower your stress level and blood pressure (and it also helps you manage your weight and reduce your risk of type 2 diabetes).

Walking in the fresh morning air — even in the rain — can boost your mood and your outlook.

Tips for summer nails

Manicures and pedicures are an important part of your beauty regime, especially during the summer. Here's how to keep your hands and feet looking their warm-weather best!

Polish up

A common do-it-yourself manicure instruction is to apply polish in just three strokes, one down the middle of the nail and one on each side. But if you watch a pro, the moves are a little different. Rita Remark of Toronto's Tips Nail Bar and Spa offers this advice:

- As you withdraw the brush from the bottle, drag one side against the lip to keep polish to one side of the bristles. "Don't be afraid to have plenty of product, as it glides easier and prevents streaking."
- Set the brush — polish down-on the nail one-quarter of the way down from the cuticle. Slowly push it up, and before the polish actually touches the cuticle, sweep down to the tip. Without re-dipping, distribute polish evenly with another stroke or two. "Especially when applying light shades, fewer strokes are better. The more you brush, the more you streak."

Chip tips

Whether you've done your own polish or had a professional job, "after a couple of days, freshen up the top coat, making sure to glide right to the ends," says Remark. "This will restore shine and give polish a fighting chance against chipping."

If you do get a little chip, file the nail length down lightly to minimize or eliminate the chipped bit, then apply another layer of top coat.

Another type of salon manicure and pedicure, involving "soak-off" gel, is rapidly gaining popularity; results can last two weeks or longer without chipping. Designed for natural nails, formulas such as OPI Axxium Gel and CND Shellac (a gel-polish hybrid) deliver a thinner, more flexible finish than traditional gel. Each layer is UV-cured — so there's zero drying time. Removal requires a salon appointment to soak nails in acetone and gently flake the gel off.

Daily TLC

Maria Cristina Faccio, owner of Ritual Tanning Salon & Nail Bar in downtown Toronto, recommends keeping cuticles soft by applying cuticle oil every night before bed.

Also, SPF on hands is a must "to prevent age spots and aged skin," she says. (Wipe nails immediately post application; sunscreen can mar the shiny polish finish.)

And don't forget your poor feet, constantly exposed in warm weather. "Slather them in moisturizer and sleep in breathable cotton socks," Faccio says.

JANINE FALCON

Scents and sensibility — what's yours?

Flowers are more than just pretty faces. Their scent evokes powerful emotions, moods and memories — and that's made perfume a perennial part of most beauty wardrobes.

Rose and lavender remain timeless favourites, but this season's most popular fragrances feature more exotic blooms. Notes of freesia, grapefruit, mandarin, orchid and rose with pear are present in the perfect-for-summer scents, says Tammy Smitham, of Shoppers Drug Mart and its upmarket cousin, Murale.

Each flower has a fragrance profile. Freesia is intensely sweet and comforting. Rose offers a warm, deep sweetness considered an aphrodisiac, but often has a bracing hit of cloves or other spicy scents. Lavender is pungent, herbaceous and soothing. Orange blossom is fruity, delicate and honey-sweet yet refreshing. And various orchids serve up scents that stretch from coconut to cedar.

Summer-fresh fragrances from natural sources are usually more expensive than synthetics, especially if they are harvested from rare blooms or faraway places. The classic brands usually contain real-flower ingredients. Ask an expert at the fragrance counter, Smitham suggests, to help you pick a classic or contemporary perfume that suits both the season and your personality.

Bare it!

With summer upon us, it's time to bare more than just our faces on the beach! Besides the usual methods (razors, creams, waxing and laser), here's a look at three hot trends in hair removal.

Hair Removal Pads: These pads are like extra-fine sandpaper and gently buff hair (and dead skin) off your body.

Body Sugaring: Similar to waxing, this method has the added benefit of exfoliation. Available in spas and salons, there are also recipes on the Internet for home.

Epilation: Shaver-shaped devices tweeze hair – a patch at a time. Web chat indicates it gets less painful with each use.

Be sure to talk to a beauty advisor about whether these methods might work well for you.

In the swim

Since the days of the Roman bath, deciding what to wear by the water has always been a challenge — do we go for comfort or style? Thanks to new materials, and fantastic designers, making the choice is no longer such a big deal.

Material girl

According to Janet Morrison of Omni Swim Aquatics in Toronto, the best material is polyester because it resists fading and stretching in harsh pool chemicals. Lycra, on the other hand, tends to stretch so much that after three months of constant use, "you'll be able to tie a knot in it," she says.

The material also makes a difference also when getting fitted: "A Lycra suit needs to be really tight because it will stretch, whereas polyester should just be comfortable, because it won't stretch," Morrison says.

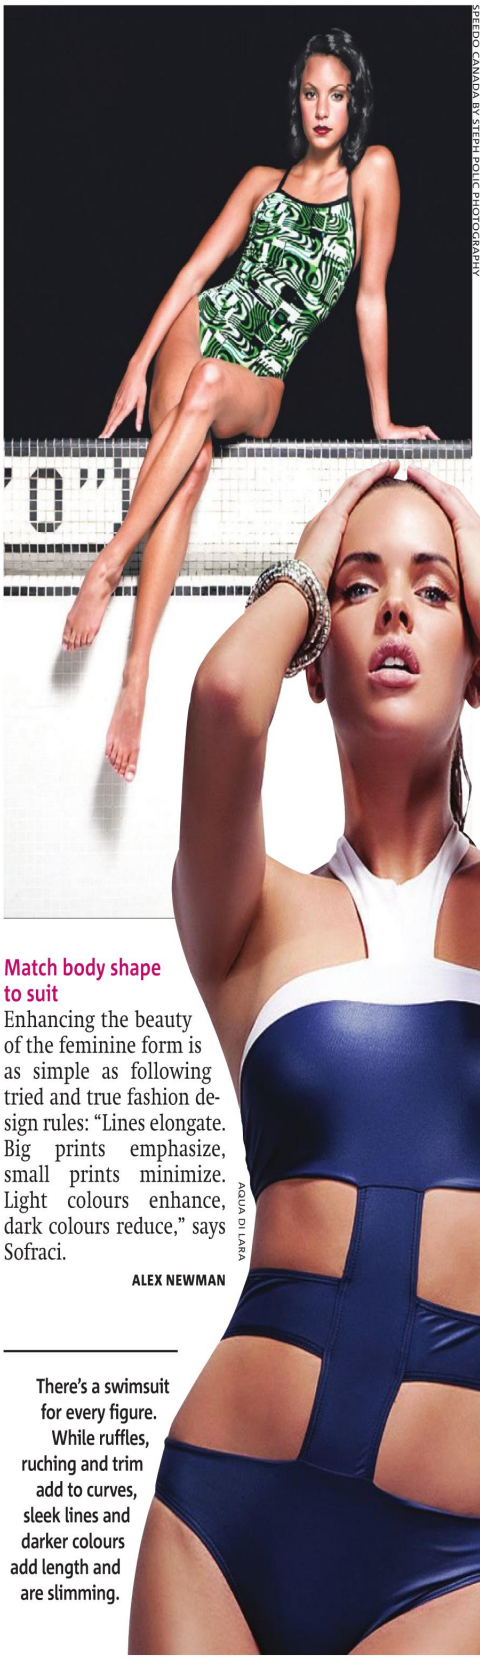
Patterns

The looks for 2010 are "solid, vibrant colours or graphic patterns, plus some textured and specialty fabrics," says Reyhan Sofraci, creative director and owner of Montreal's Aqua Di Lara Swimwear, a line of haute fashion bathing suits.

Design

And they're a little more daring in their design. Bandeaus and tarzan bottoms are a huge hit, says Sofraci, "with the cut-away suit, or monokini, being a particularly flattering style. Strategic fabric placement keeps certain areas hidden and yet has great sex appeal."

Though Sofraci loves "innovative fabrics," function is important: "The suits must brave water, sun and chlorine and stay as beautiful as when first purchased."



SPEEDO CANADA BY STEPH POLIC PHOTOGRAPHY

AQUA DI LARA

There's a swimsuit for every figure. While ruffles, ruching and trim add to curves, sleek lines and darker colours add length and are slimming.

Match body shape to suit

Enhancing the beauty of the feminine form is as simple as following tried and true fashion design rules: "Lines elongate. Big prints emphasize, small prints minimize. Light colours enhance, dark colours reduce," says Sofraci.

Fashion watch

From crowded trains and buses to air-conditioned cars and offices and everything in between, dressing for summer heat can be a challenge! Here are 10 ways to keep cool... and look great.

Wear breathable cotton and linen in lighter colours; steer clear of clingy jersey and synthetics. If you've got an active day, high-tech fabrics will wick moisture away from your skin.

Loosen up. "Something about the heat makes people feel they need to wear too little, and too tight," bemoans David Clemmer, wardrobe consultant for the popular makeover series Style By Jury.

Kelly Millar

"Something about the heat makes people feel they need to wear too little, and too tight"
KDavid Clemmer, wardrobe consultant for Style By Jury

It's okay to move up your hemline a bit if the look's right for you and your work environment. If it's corporate, forget the mini. Your best bet, says Toronto-based image consultant Kelly Millar, is at or just above the knee.

Go for balance: if you wear a flirty skirt, balance it with a jacket or cardigan; pair a tank top with a longer flowing skirt or capris with billowy tops.

Dress in layers. Loosely roll a lightweight, neutral-coloured jacket or cardigan and stash it in your knapsack or purse for the commute; hang it over the back of your chair so the creases fall out. If your office provides a place to hang clothes, keep a crisp white shirt as a back-up.

Ditch the pantyhose if your workplace allows it — but forget flip-flops. "They should only be allowed where sand is present," Clemmer says. Avoid flaming toenail colours "so people aren't noticing your nails or feet before they notice you."

Pull hair up off the neck in a chignon or ponytail. (Or, for those with longer hair, try a shorter cut this summer!)

Ice cubes or a damp wash cloth on the neck or wrists help cool you down. Install a small desk fan.

Keep anti-perspirant (it reduces wetness) or deodorant (it lets you sweat but keeps you smelling sweet) in your desk or purse. Underarm shields, which are thin adhesive pads that absorb sweat, are another option.

Take a cool bath or lukewarm shower before you head out for the evening again.

Some foods, like celery and rutabaga, contain phyto coumarin. "When ingested, these foods are absorbed through the body and show up in the skin. When exposed to the sun, the chemical is converted to an oxygen radical and that can lead to a sunburn-like reaction". DR. GORDON SEARLES

Foods to boost your beauty

When it comes to skin care, what you put on your plate may be more important than what you put on your skin, says Toronto dietitian Fran Berkoff.

"Everything we eat affects our body inside and out," says Berkoff, "so the healthier the foods you eat, the better your skin will look. There's no need to take supplements."

The best way to nourish your skin is to follow Canada's Food Guide, she says. Getting the recommended 7-10 servings of fruits and veggies a day is super easy with farmer's markets everywhere these days. Choose fruit for breakfast, dessert and snacks, make a salad for lunch and steam up different-coloured veggies with dinner.

Eat your fruit and veggies. Vitamin C produces collagen and may help reduce the damage (and wrinkles) caused by overexposure to the sun. Broccoli, tomatoes, red peppers, dark greens, strawberries and local muskmelon (cantaloupe) are all rich in this essential vitamin and powerful antioxidant.

Eat your fruit & veggies!

Take the E train. Vitamin E, another important antioxidant, may also help protect skin from sun damage and keep it looking great. Get your fix by making a big salad spritzed with good olive oil and sprinkled with nuts and seeds. For snacks, enjoy a handful of almonds.

Make a splash. Our bodies, and our skin, love Vitamin A, and one of the best places to get it is from dairy products. Think berry-banana smoothies with low-fat milk for breakfast, yogourt with fresh fruit and a mid-afternoon cup of frozen yogourt. Since we also convert beta carotene to Vitamin A, serve a low-fat yogourt dip with bright orange carrot, sweet potato or rutabaga sticks.

"More studies are needed to figure out the long-term benefits of food on our skin," says Berkoff, "but we know for sure that eating a variety of healthy foods and drinking plenty of water to keep your skin hydrated will go a long way to helping you look and feel terrific this summer."

Fitness watch — beach ready workout

Well toned muscles look fabulous in summer bikinis and tank tops... and toning muscles is easier to do than you think, says Krista Popowych, manager of the Richmond Olympic Oval in Richmond, B.C. She recommends five muscle conditioning moves to help tone the muscles that are most often bared in summer!

Health Canada recommends that healthy Canadians aim for at least 60 minutes of physical activity every day. That includes aerobic exercise such as cycling and fast walking and muscle conditioning.

Remember that losing a bit of weight — and fat — might be important too, in revealing muscle tone. The best way to lose extra fat is to combine aerobic exercise with healthy eating.

1 Wide leg squat with calf raise

(Targets: legs)

Stand with feet wide and toes turned outward. Bend knees as you lower your torso straight down. Lift heels and balance on toes for 3 seconds. Drop heels and lift torso back to starting position. Be sure to keep all movements slow and controlled in this exercise and others. Repeat 10-12 times.

Advanced: Repeat 10-12 more times.

2 Wide leg push-up

(Targets: arms, shoulders, chest and core)

Start in a push-up position with legs wider than hip width and arms in line with shoulders, elbows slightly bent and pointing back (not to the sides). Bend elbows slowly as you lower your upper body to the ground. Pause, then push yourself up to the starting position. Repeat 10-12 times.

Advanced: In the upper position, reach out one arm. Hold for 5 seconds. Lower. Change sides.

3 Reverse lunge into knee lift

(Targets: glutes, quads, hamstrings, calves)

Stand with feet hip width apart and arms by your sides. Bend the left knee as you step the right leg back into a lunge position. In a slow, sweeping motion, and as you straighten the left knee, lift the right leg forward and bend the knee up to waist height. Reach the right leg back again into a lunge position. Repeat 10-12 times. Change legs.

Advanced: As you bring the knee up, do a bicep curl with your arms. As you lower the leg, lower your arms again too.

4 Side plank

(Targets: shoulders, core, abdominals)

Lie on your left side with elbow bent and body lifted off the floor with legs extended and stacked or the top foot acting as a brace on the ground in front of the right foot. Be sure neck is in line with the spine. Extend right arm up towards the ceiling. Hold for up to 15-50 seconds.

Advanced: Sweep your right arm around and under your body to touch the ground underneath.

5 Bicycle

(Targets: Abs)

Lie on your back with head, neck and shoulders raised, elbows wide, hands lightly touching either side of your head. Reach your opposite elbow to opposite knee as you start to cycle. Repeat 30-50 seconds. Take a break and repeat.

Advanced: Change the tempo — slower is more challenging.

McDonald hits home run for his father, who died last week

MLB RESULTS

Giants 9 Blue Jays 6

GIANTS VS BLUE JAYS

John McDonald's bottom lip quivered as he recalled the conversation with his late father, Jack.

They were talking about what kind of player the light-hitting utility infielder was, and Jack had a request for his son.

"Hit your next home run for me," he said, shortly before he died from liver cancer Tuesday.

John McDonald obliged. In his first at-bat after the funeral Friday. On Father's Day.

His first thought as he was rounding the bases?

"Probably the fact that I couldn't call my dad after the game," McDonald said, the corner of his eyes dampening.

"I think it was for both of us ... The fact I got that out of the way quick was nice. I told him they're not that easy to hit."

On most days, the light-hitting infielder's home run in the ninth inning of a 9-6 Toronto Blue Jays loss to the San Francisco Giants would be a footnote. Yesterday, it was one of those rare times in sports when a single moment supersedes victories and losses.

TONY BOCK/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Toronto Blue Jay John McDonald hits a home run in the ninth inning yesterday, scoring Fred Lewis.

"I think it brought tears to just about everyone's eyes," said manager Cito Gaston.

McDonald rejoined his teammates Saturday and was only seeing action yesterday as a late-inning replacement for second baseman Aaron Hill in a blowout game. But he welcomed the opportunity to play, jumped all over an 0-1 curveball from Jeremy Affeldt and sent his first of the season just over the left-field wall.

He pumped his fist as the ball disappeared into the bullpen.

"My dad wanted me to be here for Father's Day," said McDonald, who has a young daughter. "I'm not usually happy or excited post-game after a loss, but it was a special moment for our family."

For his teammates, too.

McDonald was given an emotional reception in the Blue Jays dugout, and then was hugged by Vernon Wells, Hill, Shaun Marcum and Casey Janssen in the tunnel to the clubhouse.

"We cried on each other's shoulders for a good 30 seconds," said Wells. "When it went out it was instant goosebumps. Wins and losses don't really matter at that point, that was one of the most special moments I've gotten to see in this game.

"I think that's the happiest loss any of us have encountered in our professional careers."

Northern Ireland's McDowell becomes first European to win U.S. Open in 40 years

GOLF Graeme McDowell of Northern Ireland won the U.S. Open, holding off France's Gregory Havret to become the first European to win America's national championship since 1970.

McDowell shot a 3-over 74 on a difficult day yesterday at Pebble Beach to finish at even-par 284 for the tournament and win by one. Havret, a Frenchman ranked 391st in the world, played in the same group with Tiger Woods and didn't let it bother him. He was within one of McDowell with two holes left but couldn't make birdie on the par-5 18th to tie.

Ernie Els finished third at 2 over.

Double-eagle

- The day yielded the second double-eagle in the history of the U.S. Open, when Shaun Micheel hit a 3-iron from 239 yards into the hole on the par-5 sixth.

Woods made four bogeys on the front nine en route to a 4-over 75. He tied for fourth with Phil Mickelson, the same spot he finished in at the Masters in April. Mike Weir of Bright's Grove, Ont., who was one back of the lead after the first round, shot a final round of 4-over 75 and finished tied for 80th. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports in brief

IRL Tony Kanaan overtook Helio Castroneves with 10 laps left and held on to win the Iowa 250 yesterday. It was the first win since 2008 for Kanaan, who last took the checkered flag in Richmond two years ago. Kanaan had crashed in each of his first three starts at Iowa, but he zipped past Castroneves on lap 240 and cruised to victory by over four seconds.

GOLF Japan's Ai Miyazato shot a 7-under 64 yesterday to win the $1.5-million US ShopRite LPGA Classic. The 25-year-old Miyazato is guaranteed to take over the No. 1 spot in today's rankings after her fourth victory of the season. Second-round leader M.J. Hur finished second, two shots behind Miyazato. Fellow South Korean Inbee Park, the 2008 U.S. Women's Open champion, was a further two shots back.

BASEBALL Fireballer Bob Feller's ceremonial first pitch bounced before it reached home plate. That's OK, though. The 91-year-old Hall of Famer still received the only standing ovation at the Hall of Fame Classic yesterday. "I think I joined the politicians. An improbable dream

Ex-Utah State guard among 17 hopefuls attending Raptors camp

Of course there are moments of frustration and despair as the dream keeps getting further and further away.

Of course there are doubts that creep into the mind and questions that arise about whether it's all worth it.

But there stands Jaycee Carroll, taking another shot, trying to defy the odds of opportunity and age to get the one thing he's wanted almost his entire life — a job in the NBA.

Carroll, along with 16 other free agents and itinerant pros from Europe and the North American minor leagues, have just wound up at a weekend Raptors camp at the Air Canada Centre, trying to take the next step on an improbable journey.

"It's definitely a difficult and stressful situation going year to year not knowing exactly where you'll be or what you'll be doing, but in the long run it's a dream come true," said the 27-year-old Carroll, who played the last two seasons in Spain.

JOSH RUTKE/FREDERICK/GETTY IMAGES

Utah State Aggies guard Jaycee Carrol, right, pressures Washington Huskies guard Brandon Roy in a NCAA tournament game in March 2006. Carrol is trying to win a spot with the Toronto Raptors.

The best any of the players can legitimately expect out of the camp is a spot on the team the Raptors will take to the Las Vegas summer league next month. But a spot there and an impressive performance could land a berth at the full training camp in October and all Carroll wants is that kind of shot.

Carroll's pursuit of his NBA dream has been all-encompassing. He said he's been to three mini-camps, played on "five or six" summer league teams (including Toronto's three summers ago) and had tryout sessions with "17 or 18 different teams."

"There's been a couple (of invitations turned down) but pretty much if I'm invited, I say yes and I come up and play my hardest because with all the people here in the organization, you never know where they'll be the next season and maybe an opportunity will open up on a different team," he said.

Jays assign slumping third baseman to triple-A Las Vegas

BASEBALL Edwin Encarnacion's extended slump has earned the Toronto Blue Jays third baseman a trip to triple-A Las Vegas, with infielder Jarrett Hoffpauir recalled to replace him.

General manager Alex Anthopoulos made the move after Sunday's 9-6 loss to the San Francisco Giants in the hopes some time in the minors might help Encarnacion recapture his swing. He went 0-for-4 with an error before his demotion and is now 17-for-88 (.193) since being activated from the disabled list May 17.

Edwin Encarnacion

"We still believe in Edwin as a player but it's something that we'd been talking about the last little while just to get him going," said Anthopoulos. "We told him this wasn't permanent. He goes down there, starts to get his swing going a little bit, he should be able to find his way up here."

Overall Encarnacion is batting .200 with nine homers and 22 RBIs, but too often has been all or nothing at the plate and inconsistent in the field.

The 27-year-old was acquired from Cincinnati last summer along with pitching prospects Zach Stewart and Josh Roenicke for third baseman Scott Rolen. The Reds insisted the Blue Jays take Encarnacion in the deal to make it happen.

He's making $4.75 million US this season and isn't eligible for free agency until after the 2011 season, so the Blue Jays are hoping they can rebuild some value in the asset.

"There's still a lot of ability there, he just needs to get it going and maybe going down to Las Vegas he can get it going and get back here soon," said Anthopoulos.

Encarnacion batted a career-high .289 in 2007 and launched a career-high 26 homers in 2008, when his average slipped to .251. It declined further to .225 in 85 games with Cincinnati and Toronto last year, when he was hampered by a wrist injury. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Shock and draw

Tiny New Zealand stuns Italy by forcing tie

GROUP F RESULTS

New Zealand 1 Italy 1

Defending champion Italy was held to another 1-1 draw yesterday, this time by New Zealand, in the latest World Cup surprise.

The 78th-ranked All Whites took the lead in the seventh minute when the ball glanced off 36-year-old Italy captain Fabio Cannavaro, gifting a goal to Shane Smeltz. A long free kick from Simon Elliott sailed deep into Italy's area, deflected off Cannavaro's hip and went directly toward the waiting Smeltz for the tap in.

Riccardo Montolivo hit the post for Italy in the 27th, and Vincenzo Iaquinta equalized two minutes later with a penalty after Tommy Smith was shown a yellow card for tugging down Daniele De Rossi inside the area.

"We're just sorry we didn't win a match we could have," Italy coach Marcello Lippi said. "If we didn't win against New Zealand it's our fault. Once again the opponent scored on their first chance. We were able to control the game after that, but this was a match we should have won."

Iaquinta appeared to celebrate as if he were blowing a vuvuzela, the plastic trumpets that have become a symbol of the World Cup.

At the final whistle, however, the celebration was located in one corner of the Mbombela Stadium, where a small section of New Zealand fans marked their country's historic result by taking their shirts off and waving them around deliriously.

"I think that stopped the nation," New Zealand coach Ricki Herbert said. "It's the most incredible result we've had across the board. As a football coach, it's way above anything we've achieved in the history of the game."

Crunch time for Ronaldo

GROUP G PREVIEW

Portugal vs. North Korea

The pressure will be on Cristiano Ronaldo to start producing goals when Portugal meets North Korea today, and he will be without Deco to feed him passes.

The Chelsea midfielder missed pre-match training at Green Point Stadium yesterday with a left hip injury and coach Carlos Queiroz ruled him out of the North Korea game.

Ronaldo said he hoped Deco could recover for the final group match against Brazil.

"Obviously Deco is always an important piece in the chess game," said Ronaldo.

Portugal is already without Manchester United winger Nani, who was ruled out of the World Cup before the tournament started.

"There were instances Deco didn't play, when Cristiano Ronaldo didn't play, and we were able to win nevertheless," said Queiroz.

Portugal will be looking for a big win, seeking to get a least one foot into the second round ahead of the last first-round game against Brazil next Friday.

"It is all or nothing as far we are concerned," said Queiroz.

North Korea, too, has the confidence, after it held Brazil before losing 2-1.

"We are going to put all of our efforts into the remaining two games and to win points — that is our main goal," said coach Kim Jong Hun, adding that his country might even go as far as the quarterfinals.

Brazil boosted North Korea's ambitions, beating Ivory Coast 3-1 Sunday. It left Brazil with a perfect six points from two games, ahead of Portugal with one point from one game and Ivory Coast with one point from two games. North Korea has none, but has a match in hand over Ivory Coast.

Brazil beats Ivory Coast with controversial goal, advances

GROUP G RESULT

Brazil 3 Ivory Coast 1

VS

Brute force and hand balls aside, Brazil has achieved its first objective at the World Cup: Advancing out of Group G.

Luis Fabiano scored a pair of goals, one with the aid of touches with his arm and his hand, while Elano added another as Brazil beat Ivory Coast 3-1 yesterday to secure a spot in the second round from Group G.

In a physical match that saw Brazil star Kaka ejected with two late yellow cards, the five-time champions showed they can deal out the rough stuff with the pretty plays.

"It's true, the ball really touched my hand and then my shoulder," Luis Fabiano said of his second goal. "But it was involuntary. It was one of the greatest goals I've scored in my career."

RICHARD HEATHCOTE/GETTY IMAGES

Brazil's Lucio clashes with Didier Drogba of Ivory Coast yesterday.

Fabiano got his first goal in six matches for the national team with a powerful right-footed shot in the 25th minute after a perfect pass by Kaka between defenders. He jumped over defender Kolo Toure before firing into the top of the net from a difficult angle.

Fabiano added to the lead in the 50th with his left foot from near the penalty spot after beating two defenders inside the area — helped by his sleight-of-hand.

Ivory Coast coach Sven-Goran Eriksson was livid that the second goal counted.

"It shouldn't have been allowed," Eriksson said. "They got a goal free. That's a two-nil goal — that changed everything.

Didier Drogba, playing from the start for the first time after breaking his right arm in a warmup game, scored the lone goal for Ivory Coast with a header in the 79th.

French director 'ashamed'

SOUTH AFRICA France's World Cup ambitions lay in ruins yesterday after public rifts erupted between players, coaches and national officials over Nicolas Anelka, thrown out of the squad for insulting team coach Raymond Domenech. Amid chaotic scenes at France's training field, Domenech had the humiliating task of explaining why his whole squad was sitting behind him on the team bus, curtains drawn, refusing to join in a public training session in front of 200 local fans. In another moment of drama, France team director Jean-Louis Valentin stormed off, shouting that he was "ashamed" of the players for not training. Caught up to by reporters, Valentin announced his resignation from the French Football Federation on the spot.

Anelka was kicked off the team the previous evening after his profanity-laced tirade against Domenech was splashed across the front page of sports daily L'Equipe back home in France.

GROUP F RESULT

Paraguay 2 Slovakia 0

VS

At a World Cup lacking offence, Paraguay showed some punch.

Enrique Vera and Cristian Riveros each scored yesterday as Paraguay took a big step toward the round of 16 with a 2-0 win over Slovakia. The win puts Paraguay atop Group F with four points after two matches. Defending champion Italy and New Zealand tied 1-1 yesterday, leaving each with two points. Slovakia has one.

"We played a good match and we are getting closer to the round of 16," Vera said. "Our intention now is to be first in the group."

Vera broke through for La Albirroja in the 27th when forward Lucas Barrios slipped a pass into the box and Vera angled it past Slovakia goalkeeper Jan Mucha with a one-time shot.

Spain feeling the pain

Calls loss to Swiss an 'accident,' faces must-win against Honduras

GROUP H PREVIEW
Spain vs. Honduras

Anything less than a win for Spain against Honduras today could see one of the pre-tournament favourites making an ignominious early exit from the World Cup.

The Spanish team described its shock 1-0 defeat to Switzerland in its opening game an "accident" as it lost for only the second time in 49 matches, which means it cannot afford to slip up again in Group H.

The European champion plays its Central American opponent at Johannesburg's Ellis Park with both teams trailing Switzerland and Chile by three points following opening defeats. Honduras opened with a 1-0 loss to Chile.

"We're very motivated after the accident of the other day," defender Carles Puyol said yesterday. "It's so important — it's a final."

Spain is confident its bad day has passed and it can live up to its billing as a pre-tournament favourite after so many disappointments at past World Cups.

But Spain may have to do it without midfielder Andres Iniesta, who hurt his right leg against the Swiss.

"We have to go out with a lot of desire and a lot of respect because we know it won't be easy," said Puyol, who doesn't believe his team is guilty of looking beyond the initial stages. "I don't think we lacked respect for anybody."

One of the changes coach Vicente del Bosque could make is to bring Fernando Torres back into the lineup.

Alongside forward David Villa, Torres could provide the extra punch Spain was lacking in attack against the Swiss.

Despite having the bulk of possession, Spain was missing a cutting edge against a massed Swiss defence.

"We had chances. We didn't score a goal and that was the key. Let's hope it doesn't happen again since that would be odd," Torres said.

"The most important thing is not to allow anxiety to overwhelm us if minutes pass and we are not able to score."

Since the defeat, the Spanish players have insisted there will be no change to the team's possession-based, quick-touch game regardless of who starts.

Honduras coach Reinaldo Rueda is expecting the full force of a Spanish backlash.

"We should not be distracted by the (Swiss) result," Rueda said.

"As one of the favourites and having lost their first game, Spain will be even more determined."

England holds crisis meeting, denies rift

ELIMINATION? England players held a crisis meeting with coach Fabio Capello yesterday to discuss what went wrong in the dismal 0-0 draw with Algeria that left the team facing possible elimination from the World Cup.

Although defender John Terry denied reports of a rift between Capello and the players, he acknowledged there was a lack of passion during Friday's game and pledged it would return for Wednesday's must-win match against group leader Slovenia.

"We've got a meeting tonight, watching the game to see where we went wrong," he said at the team's training camp. "Everyone needs to get off their chest exactly how they're feeling."

But the Chelsea captain said all the players were behind Capello and dismissed reports there was unrest in the training camp.

"The manager said that we played without any passion."
England defender John Terry

"I have seen a few reports this morning and, on behalf of the players, I can say there's no unrest in the camp at all," Terry said.

"The manager said that we played without any passion. Being an Englishman and coming through the ranks at Chelsea and getting the caps to play for England, you should have that and I don't think any player had that the other night."

England has only two points from two matches, but Terry remained confident the team would beat Slovenia in Port Elizabeth and qualify for the round of 16.

The Slovenians lead Group C with four points, England and the United States have two points apiece, and Algeria has one.

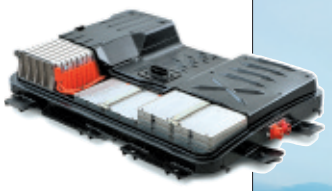
Electric cars getting a jump start

Manufacturers addressing consumer's two biggest concerns — sticker price, battery range

BEN KNIGHT
for Metro Canada

The electric car is not dead after all. Several big auto manufacturers are racing ahead with low- or zero-emission technology, and a new generation of electric vehicles should be widely available in Canada as early as 2012.

This much-desired concept is being improved by the day, and concerns once seen as all-but-insurmountable are melting away.



Battery life and sticker price have been two of the major stumbling blocks for electric cars.

BATTERY RANGE

What's the concern?

Many drivers want to drive cleaner vehicles, but are worried electric cars simply cannot travel far enough to meet their needs.

What's changing?

The Nissan Leaf — an all-electric, zero-emission vehicle set for release in late 2011 — will have a single-charge range of 160 km.

"We feel that the best way to control CO2 emissions is by producing none at all," says Mark McDade, director of marketing at Nissan, Canada Inc. "The average commuting driver in Canada has an average round trip of 30-40 km. With a range of 160, those drivers' needs are completely satisfied."

Toyota, manufacturer of the successful Prius hybrid vehicle, is focusing on several options, all of which are good on range.

"Right now, we've announced a global demonstration program for our plug-in Toyota Prius hybrid," says Rodney Jones, Manager of Advanced Technology and Powertrain at Toyota Canada. "That vehicle will be available for consumers in 2012, as well as the battery electric vehicle that we are working on."

Did you know?

- The City of Toronto took a significant step towards greener, cleaner air in 2007, when it passed an official plan calling for a 6 per cent cut in greenhouse gas emissions across the GTA by 2012. The cuts gets more ambitious moving forward. A reduction of fully 30 per cent has been targeted for 2020, and the long-term projection is for a whopping 80 per cent cut by the midpoint of the century.

STICKER PRICE

What's the concern?

Because this is new and innovative technology, potential buyers think electric cars will be prohibitively expensive.

What's changing?

"Quite honestly, the sticker price is not the issue," says Nissan's McDade "It's the operating cost. You're not using fuel. The maintenance on this vehicle is diminished greatly, because there's not many fluids to deal with. The battery is a self-contained unit, so there's not a lot of open-heart surgery going on here."

The Leaf's Canadian price has not yet been determined, but the car sells for $32,700 in the United States. McDade notes that both Ontario and Quebec have already announced up to $10,000 in incentives for drivers who want to purchase electric cars.

"The more that people buy them, the more the price goes down," Jones adds. "We've sold more than 2.5 million hybrid vehicles worldwide. A lot of that technology will go into our plug-in and battery-electric hybrid vehicles. Our focus right now is to be able to sell it at a price where people will adopt them on a mass scale."

Measuring ocean acidification

JESSICA CARLESON
Metro World News

An international research group has just reached the Arctic, with the aim of conducting the largest study so far of ocean acidification, which is another threat to the delicate marine life, especially in cold waters.

The research is still in its infancy, but the main cause is identified — climate change.

"We know that ocean acidification is real. The part of the research that is in its infancy is what affect it has on the calcifying marine organisms, including corals, shellfish and marine plankton, the basis of many marine organisms," Dr. David Santillo said at the Greenpeace Research Laboratories at the University of Exeter.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Greenpeace has been helping to transport scientists to the Arctic.

Oceans have an invaluable role in regulating C02-levels.

A large part of the CO2-emissions are absorbed by the oceans and dissolved into a weak acid. Since the beginning of industrialization the acidification has risen by 30 per cent — which is very quickly in ocean terms.

"The oceans are naturally slightly alkaline and have been very stable for many years. Any small change in acidity has dramatic effects because so many shell building organisms in the ocean rely on a near neutral PH level," Santillo said.

Office junk becomes a business' treasure

KEITH CARMAN
for Metro Canada

As technology turns equipment obsolete quicker than ever, iRecycle Computers is attempting to 'green' the whole process.

Isn't technology great? The moment you plunk down your final payment on a set of LCD monitors for the office, they're obsolete. Something newer, better, faster and greener is already on the market, rendering your "latest gadget" little more than a collection of processed materials waiting to fill some landfill site.

However, the hazardous disposal of unwanted office equipment can be prevented. Those antiquated photocopiers, printers and towers are packed with non-biodegradable yet recyclable components such as plastics, precious metals, glass and hazardous materials.

Disposing of such material safely is the inspiration of iRecycle Computers, a Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) collection company founded in 2006 by information technology specialist Laurent Ho.

Determined to make a positive impact in the community and the environment, iRecycle Computers (iRC) takes care of yesterday's unwanted Devices Of Tomorrow.

"iRecycle Computers is committed to promoting and providing recycling solutions for computer-related goods by ensuring the equipment is diverted from landfills," Ho says. "Instead, it is recycled in an environmentally sound manner that minimizes impact on both human health and the environment."

iRC offers both long-term and temporary acquisition options to commercial, retail, residential and public participators wanting to be greener. With just a nominal fee levied to cover collection, loading, packaging and servicing of materials.

iRC collects these items through either a subtle, fixed accumulation point dubbed the Inorganic Market Collection Container or pre-arranged one-time drop-off events.

On an ecological level, Ho points out iRC's importance based on the various levels of recoverable materials us average desk jockeys overlook: Lead and glass from monitors that can be smelted, recoverable plastics that are shredded into pellets/sold to create new plastic and recoverable electronics commodities including gold, nickel, copper, coltan, silver, aluminum, steel and more.

Each piece of machinery is sorted depending on recovery value and hazard level ranging from Green (high recovery, little hazard) to Yellow (intermediate) and Red (low recovery, high hazards).

While not all elements are fully recovered, iRecycle provides an alternative to complete waste with minimal effort put forth by participating companies. As Ho sees it, by getting in touch with iRecycle, they're already ahead of the game.

"Not only does our environment benefit, but participants have greener tendencies, essentially epitomizing the idea of, 'one man's junk being another man's treasure.'

"A business is being responsible when using our services," he asserts. "They just need to have the equipment ready for collection (and) the iRecycle Colour Zone sorting system is what differentiates iRecycle from other companies. The sorting system is an education piece to show that not all the materials are the same. By separating the items according to hazard level, people are simultaneously learning and recycling."

"It is recycled in an environmentally sound manner that minimizes impact on both human health and the environment."

Canadian undergrads speculate about 2040

SURVEY According to a MyCanEd news release, a recent survey of 1,581 undergrads at 19 universities across Canada has found that young people anticipate greater global change than change to Canada itself.

Almost all agreed that by 2040, Alberta and Quebec would still be part of Canada, and that universal health care and pension plans would still exist.

About two-thirds anticipate that the polar ice caps will have melted, a nuclear war will have taken place, a human will have been successfully cloned, artificial intelligence will exist, and that China will be the world's leading superpower.

At the same time, most do not expect cures for cancer or AIDS, or peace in the Middle East, in the next 30 years.

Overall, the students see the economy (43 per cent), health care (34 per cent) and the environment (23 per cent) as the top issues facing Canada today. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Still forging steel in the 20th century

Odd Jobs

Diane Peters

PHOTO SUBMITTED

Blacksmith Robb Thak, 41, from Thak Ironworks hammers away at his forge.

Robb Thak loved art and reading history and fantasy books growing up. "As soon as I realized blacksmiths made all the armour, I knew that's what I wanted to do."

As a teen, he discovered that one of the top blacksmiths in southern Ontario lived down the road, and he offered classes: Thak took one and built himself a forge at home to practise.

Thak, who's now 41, kept asking if he could work in the shop. He asked about four times before the blacksmith caved in and let him start sweeping floors for $5 an hour.

Over the next four years, Thak got his basic training as a blacksmith. He married young and had kids, and those were "lean years," he recalls. So he quit to sell insurance.

That did not work out. After a year, he got a night job at a factory and did blacksmith work by day at the shop he'd set up on his parents' farm.

For six years, he honed his craft and built up a reputation. "These are not skills you learn over six months. It takes several years to get the hand-eye-coordination and the larger design and proportions right."

Finally, he was able to quit and rent his own shop. A few years later, he began sharing space with his father-in-law, who ran an auto repair shop in Floridale, a tiny village near Thak's home in Elmira. Eventually, his father-in-law moved to another location and Thak bought the building.

Now, Thak works from 6 a.m. until 5 p.m. six days a week. He takes Sunday off to be with his family (who also often help out in the shop).

Thak makes metal creations — mostly using steel, but sometimes copper and brass — ranging from small doorknockers to large, elaborate railings that sell for around $30,000.

His tools include a forge, which is a small and very hot furnace, a hammer and an anvil (yup, the thing Wile E. Coyote used on the Road Runner).

He heats up a piece of steel to around 2,000 F, which makes it as mouldable as clay. He has about a minute to use his hammer to shape it. Then it's back into the forge, and more hammering. The shape of the anvil is helpful as a tool to bend the steel in various ways.

Thak and his on-staff blacksmith work at the forge for about three hours a day: It's hot, exhausting work. For every two hours at the forge, a piece needs about three hours of addition work, including sanding, soldering and painting.

The Lowdown

Job title: Blacksmith
Salary: Same as a contractor or tradesperson
Education/training: You learn through courses and on the job; there's no formal certification in Canada
Best Part of the Job: "I like the creating part at the forge. And I like working with creative people."
Worst Part of the Job: "The administrative work."

Diane Peters once hawked magic pens at the Canadian National Exhibition. She's now a writer and part-time journalism instructor.

2010, the year of the odd resumé

The competition is fierce for what jobs out there, so applicants are upping the ante

Even as the job market improves, with unemployment still up there, job seekers have turned to unconventional methods to stand out from the competition.

According to a new survey from CareerBuilder, nearly one-quarter of hiring managers (22 per cent) reported that they are seeing more job seekers try unusual tactics to capture their attention in 2010 compared to last year. This is up from 18 per cent of hiring managers who said the same in 2009 and 12 per cent in 2008.

"While we are seeing positive signs in the job market as employers gradually add headcount, competition is still high for open positions," said Jason Ferrara, senior career adviser at CareerBuilder. "As a result, more candidates are turning to unconventional tactics to attract the attention of hiring managers. While these tactics may work occasionally, they still need to be done with professionalism. That way, candidates are remembered for what they can offer an organization and not just for an unusual antic."

Job candidates this year are using every creative trick they can think of to convince employers that they are the ones for the job.

Some hiring managers report that unusual job-seeking tactics can be effective. Nearly one-in-ten (nine per cent) said they have hired someone who used an unconventional tactic to get their attention. When asked what unusual job search methods made them hire a job seeker, hiring managers reported the following:

- Candidate brought in a DVD of his former boss giving him a recommendation.
- Candidate applying for a casino table game position came into my office and started dealing on my desk while pretending to talk to players, which showed me her guest service skills.
- Candidate sent in a letter that explained how to solve an issue our company was having with a certain type of technology.
- Candidate who was a prospective teacher brought in a box of props to demonstrate her teaching style.
- Candidate came prepared with unique business cards featuring our logo and a self-introduction brochure.
- Candidate wrote a full business plan for one of our products with his resumé submission.
- Candidate created a full graphics portfolio on our brand.

This survey was conducted online by Harris Interactive on behalf of CareerBuilder.com among 2,778 hiring managers and human resource professionals. METRO NEWS SERVICES

MuchMusic wants to air fewer videos

TELEVISION There may soon come a time when calling MuchMusic's annual flagship gala the "video awards" will sound either hopelessly outdated or charmingly nostalgic.

While the "nation's music station" feted the best videos of the past year at the MMVAs yesterday, MuchMusic is simultaneously asking the CRTC for a series of changes that would radically alter the nearly 26-year-old network — and sharply decrease the number of music videos it airs.

LessMusic

- MuchMusic wants to reduce its obligation to air music videos by half.

Much is looking to increase the amount of dramatic series and animated content it can air, from 15 per cent to 20 per cent. It wants to eliminate the obligation to air French-language videos, and reduce the amount of money it's required to pay to MuchFACT — which funds videos by Canadian artists — by half. B.C. pop-punk act nab three awards, while Drake and Billy Talent take two

The MuchMusic Video Awards were pretty much perfect for B.C. pop-punkers Hedley, who took a leading three trophies at last night's outdoor bash at MuchMusic headquarters.

The Abbotsford, B.C., natives won awards for video of the year and post-production of the year for Perfect and pop video of the year for Cha-ching.

Toronto rap star Drake and collaborator Trey Songz each won two trophies for their song Successful (cinematography of the year and hip-hop video of the year) while Mississauga, Ont., hard-rockers Billy Talent also took a pair of trophies, including rock video of the year.

Teen sensation Justin Bieber received a frenzied welcome from the masses of fans who spent days on Toronto sidewalks for the opportunity to see him in person.

He also won the award for international video by a Canadian for his smash collaboration with Ludacris, Baby.

Cyrus

And given the feverish devotion of his ever-broadening fanbase, he seemed a likely choice for the two viewer choice awards he was nominated for as well. Results for those three categories — UR Fave video, new artist and international video — weren't immediately available.

Meanwhile, show co-host Miley Cyrus wasn't shut out either.

The 17-year-old won the award for international video of the year by an artist for her upbeat single, Party in the U.S.A.

Last year's hosts, the Jonas Brothers, were also awarded with some hardware: international video of the year by a group for Paranoid.

Ottawa rapper Belly took the night's other award, nabbing the MuchFACT indie video of the year trophy for his Snoop Dogg collaboration, Hot Girl.

The show's list of presenters was filled with teen favourites, including Twilight actors Ashley Greene, Kellan Lutz and Xavier Samuel, Jersey Shore stars Snooki and Pauly D and musical artists Nikki Yanofsky, Karl Wolf and Lights.

Cyndi Lauper sings the blues

LENNY STOUTE
for Metro Canada

New wave diva, wrestling maven, Celebrity Apprentice, Gay Pride Grand Marshall, anti-discrimination activist,

Time after time, Cyndi Lauper finds a way to stay in the public eye. Mostly through a series of re-inventions, and for her latest, the lady sings the blues.

On the line from New York, Lauper is bubbly and focused on Memphis Blues, a collection of classic Stax-era tunes given the Lauper treatment. Lest you think this is a serious changeup for the lady, she says it ain't so.

"My interest in the blues goes back to a kid in her bedroom singing the songs of ('50s R&B shouter) Big Mabel, who's had a place in my music ever since. In the Nineties I was mixing pop with hip hop, which put me in a place close to where I could think of this album again".

The genesis of this long-coming album is a 1987 dream starring pianist Oscar Peterson.

"For the last 10 years it's been more or less 'Best Of' albums. I wanted to put out something and it seemed like good time to get that blues album I had in me out there".

The timing involved here is both topical and canny. Dropping a blues album gives Lauper access to a whole new audience and the soulful cachet to get onto rootsy events like the Montreal Jazzfest (July 4). It also keeps her socially consciously relevant.

Cyndi Lauper's Memphis Blues is available tomorrow.

"This is the time for a lot of blues in America. My people are struggling; my people are suffering, losing their homes. People are singing the blues all over the place. I wanted something I could sing to my people and the blues is the best thing, because at heart it's uplifting."

"Uplifting" would be a good way to describe the dream in which Peterson appeared and suggested Cyndi should be redoing old blues tunes, just like Janis Joplin did, to bring them to a new audience.

"In the dream I was an a—hole, giving Oscar lip when I should have been singing with the guy. But it stuck, and that's basically the motivation behind the album, to justify Oscar's faith in me. From that I also learnt to listen. When dreams speak to us we should all listen more."

The result is Memphis Blues, which is set to drop on Lauper's birthday tomorrow, 12 Stax-style electric blues excursions covering genre cult fave songwriters including Charlie Spand, Tracey Nelson and Memphis Slim. Cooking in the kitchen with Cyndi, a stellar crew of players including Charlie Musselwhite, Johnny Lang, Allen Toussaint, BB King and Ann Peebles.

Intimidating? Hell yeah!

Says Cyndi: "Among the many blessings I had from making the album were the amazing people I got to work with. At times I could hear this voice in my head whispering, You know everybody else will be more than good, maybe I might not be good enough."

No worries; she's fierce enough on Shattered Dreams and Mother Earth, cooks enough raunch on Rollin' and Tumblin' and rubs up well against BB King on Early In The Morning. Understandably Lauper claims she's burning to get out there and take her tunes from this most important album to the people. The music's so important she's laid aside the usual topical themes to focus on the universal one of love and its aftermaths. So when she plays the Pride show July 3 at Queen's Park, the meat of the set will be Cyndi sings the blues. But in an uplifting way.

"I see my influence everywhere; I also see the influence of Madonna and Cher. Everybody influences everybody. It's ok for Lady Gaga to grab whatever influences because she's a performance artist." Cyndi Lauper

Seven Fun Facts about Cyndi Lauper

- Won an Emmy as outstanding guest actress for a continuing role on Mad About You.
- Handpicked by Cher as the opening act for her 1999 Believe tour.
- Her million-selling debut album, She's So Unusual, was almost titled She's So Wonderful
- Made her first appearance on a TV series in 1989 on The Super Mario Bros. Super Show
- Was the first female singer to have four top-five singles released from one album.
- Very first album Blue Angel, was recorded as a member of a band of the same name. According to Lauper, it went lead.
- Girls Just Want To Have Fun was originally written by Robert Hazard for a man to perform.

The social media conference has become as much of a cliché as, well, the social media expert.

These one-day summits or boot camps promise to connect and inspire, charging an "investment" upwards of $499 (plus GST!) for panel discussions and keynotes that'll fast track you on the latest web 2.0 technologies.

The panels buzz with catchy AdWords-approved titles: "Real-Time: Does it Matter?," "Privacy in the Facebook Age," "How to Promote Yourself Online like a Rock Star."

Toss in the swag — free totebag and notebook! — and you'll end the night at the free drinks soiree supposedly getting your ROI (Return On Investment).

But doesn't information want to be free? And if you've got Mashable and ReadWriteWeb in your RSS Reader, what's that VIP Pass really worth?

Dig deep enough, and the social media conference is actually free. Sure, spend a day out of the office listening to speakers proselytize on leadership, branding, and "community engagement."

Or you could just Google the speaker's slideshare, and cut an hour-long presentation into 20 quick mouse clicks through the presentation's slides.

Then again, maybe you want to feel like you're really there.

Well, if any social media conference is worth their cutting-edge speed on the next high-level success strategy, they will have a projected tagcloud streaming the audience's real-time tweets.

These tweets are helpfully hashtagged, and voila! That content is viral for your curbed consumption.

Yet here's the worrying thing: Have you ever sloughed through a social media conference's hashtagged stream?

Last week, I scrolled through such a feed, and was struck by the jingoistic mindcasting on how to sell a networked future that's supposedly is here and now.

"True creativity is original ideas that add value and are actionable," read one iPhone tweet. "FIND THE BRIGHT SPOTS and leverage them in your strategy," went a retweeted HootSuite nugget.

Read between the lines — wait, can you even? If these real-time results say anything, it an alarming present state: the bounce rate for an evangelistical echo chamber preaching to the converted.

A Day in the Life lyrics bags $1.2 million

John Lennon's handwritten lyrics to the final song on the Beatles album Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band were purchased by an U.S. collector on Friday for $1.2 million. Danie Radcliffe attended the opening of the Harry Potter minipark at Universal Orlando.

Crowds throng new Potter minipark

Thousands of people waited in line for hours Friday to get into The Wizarding World of Harry Potter at Universal Orlando on its opening day, as Daniel Radcliffe and other stars from the movie greeted fans at the minipark.

Aerial photos showed thousands of people in a snaking line waiting to enter. On Twitter and other forums, observers joked that the park had become Harry Potter and the Endless Line.

Universal Orlando spokesman Tom Schroder said the park does not divulge attendance figures, but he said 5,000 people were waiting to get in before the park even opened Friday morning.

Schroder said that despite the large numbers of fans, "it looks as if we will be able to accommodate everyone who wants to experience The Wizarding World of Harry Potter within our regular hours."

The park was admitting guests to the 20-acre (eight-hectare) Wizarding World area in waves, so it did not appear overcrowded from the inside. But the line to enter the Wizarding World snaked all the way through Universal's Islands of Adventure park, where the Harry Potter area is located.

"It's absolutely jampacked," said Robert Niles, editor of ThemeParkInsider.com, in a phone interview, adding, "The number of people here for this is clearly in the tens of thousands. These are passionate fans."

The Wizarding World brings the popular Harry Potter books and movies to life with rides, shops and detailed reproductions of the fictitious village of Hogsmeade, the Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry and the steam-belching Hogwarts Express train. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Afghan film industry fighting for survival

In real life he's a pharmacist, a polite young man who dispenses antibiotics and advice in a tiny Jalalabad shop barely 60 kilometres from where Osama Bin Laden disappeared into the mountains.

But when evening falls, when Zhaid Khan shuts the pharmacy's gates and sends his young assistant home, he becomes someone else. Then he's a lover (albeit a chaste one). He's a singer (or at least a lip-syncher). He's a fighter, a hero, a defender of the powerless.

You've never heard of him, but Zhaid Khan is a movie star.

The quiet pharmacist is the chiselled face, the rippling muscles, the romantic hero of the minuscule Pashto-language vision of Hollywood set amid the towns and mountains of eastern Afghanistan. It's a region where American drones regularly hover overhead, Taliban attacks come all too regularly and it takes more than a little courage to be an actor.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Zhaid Khan is a pharmacist by day and a film star by night.

Khan is famous across Jalalabad, and fans sometimes come to the pharmacy to gawk at him and ask for autographs. Sometimes, though, the Taliban seek him out too. They leave him notes in the night, warning they'll burn down his shop and kill him. One day, he fears, they'll follow through on their threats.

But as Afghanistan struggles with an Islamist insurgency that has surged back since the 2001 U.S.-led invasion, putting broad swaths of the country under Taliban control, a handful of actors are making a cinematic stand.

They do it with movies that are sold here only on DVD, will never make it to western art house cinemas and can withstand only the gentlest of criticism.

There are shaky camera angles, awful hairpieces and dialogue with the cadence of a press conference. Each film is a patchwork of themes — romance, thriller, weepy family drama — knitted together by martial arts battles and lots of squirting sheep's blood bought from local butchers.

But, they'll tell you here, their battle is worth fighting.

"We are changing how people think," said Khan. "Young people see our movies and they know that Afghanistan is not just AK-47s and war. There's something else here too."

Group eyes de-Italianized show

TV The head of an Italian-American group says the producers of MTV's Jersey Shore reality show plan to go easier on Italian references in the show's second season.

Andre DiMino, national president of UNICO, said he met with officials of MTV's parent company, Viacom Inc., and they promised to cut down on references to Italians, shots of the Italian flag and the use of terms such as guido, which some Italian-Americans find offensive.

"I'm cautiously optimistic," DiMino said. "With a program like this it's still trash television, and it would be unfortunate if they don't de-Italianize the program."

MTV listened to everything DiMino said and "made some adjustments," spokeswoman Ariana Urbont said.

"However, our role is to document the cast, and however they refer to themselves we don't interfere," she said.

Sounds like we got a Situation here. Cast member Nicole "Snooki" Polizzi has no problem using the G-word. She said her fans in New Jersey miss her and she's looking forward to getting back to Seaside Heights when filming resumes next month on the show. METRO NEWS SERVICES

Elliott turns up the heat

Canadian actor OK with steamy moments in Scoundrels

For once in his on-screen career, Canadian actor David James Elliott of JAG fame hasn't had to go into the heat completely cold.

The Toronto native says his steamy bedroom scene with Virginia Madsen that opens the series Scoundrels — which debuted last night on CTV and ABC — luckily was not the very first frame they had to shoot together.

He hasn't been so fortunate on other projects, though.

"I remember when I was on Knots Landing, it was: 'Hi, this is Nicollette Sheridan.' 'Hi.' 'OK, you guys are in bed together and — GO!'" Elliott said in a recent phone interview from Los Angeles. "I mean, I literally walked on and she was already on the set, there was the bed, and you start peeling your clothes off. It's like doing porn, I guess. It's an odd moment."

The titillating bedroom scene that kicks off Scoundrels is integral to the story as it shows how the couple's intense chemistry is the glue that binds their comical family of small-time criminals.

When the patriarch, Wolf West (Elliott), is imprisoned in the first episode, his wife Cheryl (Madsen) vows to quit the con life and tries to get her kids to go straight too.

Elliott says actor Neal McDonough was originally cast as his character but dropped out when he realized he'd have to act in some hot love scenes.

When Elliott got the call for the part, it was a Friday morning and he'd just returned to Los Angeles from a two-week vacation with his wife and two children in the Amazon jungle.

Producers gave him very little time to prepare, saying: "'You've got to leave tomorrow and you start work on Monday ... and you have to relocate — to New Mexico.'"

But Elliott didn't mind. With strong writing and a premise based on the hit New Zealand series Outrageous Fortune, he saw the same potential for longevity that he envisioned when he signed on to the military legal series JAG — and that ran for 10 years.

"I look for things and I go, 'What are the possibilities for storylines?'" he said. "With JAG, the military was the environment they existed in but it was people's stories framed in action with the world as a backdrop, so I saw no end of story possibilities.

"And this, with these crazy characters and this nutty family and the fact that it's already a hit in New Zealand going into its seventh season ... I see that again." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Michael Jackson, What Happened Next

After Michael Jackson was acquitted of child molestation charges in 2006 and went into a self-imposed exile, writer and fan Jacques Peretti went in search of answers about the King of Pop, his life and what led him down his self-destructive path. The result is this 2008 documentary, which features startling revelations from Jackson's manager and the journalists who broke the story about the child abuse allegations. 10 PM on NW

Kids in the Hall: Brain Candy

Gleemonex, anyone? No, it's not the cure for addiction to the show "Glee." It's a happy pill developed by the drug company at the center of this 1996 comedy from Dave Foley, Kevin McDonald, Mark McKinney, Bruce McCulloch and Scott Thompson. Desperate to save the company from financial ruin, the bosses put the drug into production before it's fully tested. It works by causing users to relive their happiest memories, but it has some unfortunate side effects. 11:45 AM on PIX

Dreyfuss can't play himself

I GUESS IT'S BACK TO ACTING SCHOOL FOR THE OSCAR WINNER Apparently Richard Dreyfuss doesn't do a very good Richard Dreyfuss impression. The Oscar-winning actor was dropped from a radio show when he called in because the show's producers assumed he was an imposter, according to Page Six.

Dreyfuss was calling to support pal David Black, who was on the show to promote his new book. Black assured the producers that it was in fact Dreyfuss, who called back and managed to get on the air.

Shia woos Carey's folks

LET'S HOPE HER PARENTS DON'T READ THE TABLOID STORIES OF HIS PAST ARRESTS Shia LaBeouf has already won Carey Mulligan's heart, but he apparently also wanted to make sure her parents love him, too. On a recent trip to London, the Transformers star did his best to woo his British girlfriend's mom and dad, according to the National Enquirer.

"Her parents were worried that Shia was just another Hollywood player who would hurt Carey," a source says. "Shia did his best to prove he's the real deal."

His best reportedly included bringing a Hermes scarf for Mulligan's mother and an iPad for her father. "They thought it was sweet, and he enjoyed spoiling them a bit," the source says.

Dutch officials ban Snoop from festival

IF THERE WAS ONE COUNTRY THAT SHOULD LOVE FAMOUS POT-HEADS YOU WOULD THINK IT WOULD BE THEM Snoop Dogg was "astonished" to find himself banned from a music festival in the Netherlands. The rapper was bumped from the June 27 Parkpop festival in the Hague at the request of the mayor and local law enforcement, according to the BBC.

"There's been much speculation that, given the enormous response by Snoop's fans to the free festival, the local authorities would not be able to provide sufficient security," The rapper's manager says in a statement. "Snoop is a mainstay at music festivals all over the world and has performed at all of these without incident."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Stir-fried Chicken and Avocado Salad with Hot Balsamic Dressing

INGREDIENTS:

Chicken
500 g boneless, skinless chicken breasts
2 tsp olive oil
2 large garlic cloves, slivered
2 tbsp honey
1 tbsp grainy mustard
1 tbsp balsamic vinegar
6 strips turkey bacon, diced

Salad
2 heads Boston lettuce, leaves
1 bunch watercress
2 avocados
3 tbsp lemon juice
2 cups cherry tomatoes
1 small red onion

METHOD:

1. For salad, place lettuce leaves in large salad bowl. Trim tips of watercress and toss with lettuce. Peel and halve avocados; discard pits. Slice avocados lengthwise, 1 cm thick, and toss with lemon juice. Halve tomatoes and slice onion into thin slivers. Scatter avocados, tomatoes and red onion on top of salad and refrigerate.
2. Cut chicken lengthwise into 2.5 cm wide strips. In large skillet, heat oil over medium-high heat. Add chicken and garlic; stir-fry until chicken turns opaque, 3 minutes.
3. Add honey, mustard and vinegar; mix well. Add turkey bacon and stir-fry until bacon is cooked and chicken is tender and moist, 3 minutes.
4. Spoon chicken strips, bacon and any remaining liquid on top of salad. Serve with wedges of warm, crusty bread.

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
After several weeks in which you have been free to come and go as you please you now have to stay in one place for a while.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
You may not completely understand the changes now taking place but if you go with the flow you may find you quite like them.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
If you work hard and aim high it's more than possible that you will come into money in the near future.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
A new solar year begins today but you don't have to rush here, there and everywhere — at least not yet. Keep your options open.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
Like it or not you will have to let go of something you would rather keep hold of. You know it is limiting your options.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
If you want others to trust you more you are going to have to earn it. Your task for today is to show you are serious about joint projects.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
Act as if the eyes of the world are upon you. Most likely they are. There is no better time to make a good impression on people in positions of power.

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
No matter how much certain things may annoy you, either at home or at work, you must keep your thoughts to yourself for the time being.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
The right time to deal with an important business or money matter is now. Investments and property issues are under especially good stars at the moment.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
Partnership issues will come to the fore, but that's nothing to be worried about. Be honest about what you expect from a relationship and it'll work out.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
You have been wasting too much time and too much energy on things of no importance. Find ways to streamline your chores.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
Start doing what you want to do and do less of what other people want you to do. What you want most, of course, is more excitement in your life.
